

CITY'S GAG ORDINANCE REPEALED BY ALDERMEN AT MAYOR'S SUGGESTION

Mayor Canfield Tells Council That While He Would Be Willing to Withstand Attack Made on Ordinance He Did Not Feel He Should Ask Them to Place Themselves in a Similar Position.

The ordinance regulating public speech which the common council adopted on July 5, and which was later amended on July 20, was repealed by the aldermen at the suggestion of Mayor Canfield, who had prepared both the ordinance and the amended ordinance, at a meeting of the common council held Tuesday evening. There was a large attendance of citizens at the session, who were interested in the public hearing announced on the gag law, but the mayor's suggestion and unanimous acceptance of the suggestion by the aldermen made it unnecessary to hold the public hearing.

Mayor Canfield, who was extended the privilege of the floor, said: "We have worked together in passing legislation, not to gain favor but to advance the interests of the city. All of our authority originates in the will of the majority. The will of the majority preponderates in the end and directs public affairs."

"I know that it has been your purpose to legislate for the good of the community. In doing so economic and intellectual principles should exercise the proper influence. Illogical or exaggerated statements should have no weight or bearing. In treating objections we have the right to come and when they come, why they come and how they come. We must decide whether our legislation is a real object of apprehension or not. Many people do not seem to grasp the one great principle of government which all great statesmen have understood, that while it is important to guard society against the oppression of its rulers, it is of equal importance and more often necessary to guard one part of society against the injustice of the other part."

"I have always been a strong adherent and advocate of the freedom of the press and of freedom of speech. The question, however, whether a city can control its streets and the uses of its streets, is entirely another question and all the courts have so said. The fact that the appellate division of the supreme court has stated that an ordinance in the form of the one passed by your honorable body is a legal, reasonable and proper one, would seem to be sufficient to satisfy anyone in regard to its propriety. While I would be willing to withstand the attack made upon it, I do not feel that I should place myself in a similar position although many of you have told me that you are favorable to the ordinance. I, therefore, suggest that no matter what your personal views may be in the matter, you rescind it."

Alderman George Schick, of the Third ward, said that he would like to explain his vote. He had not been present at the meeting the ordinance was adopted, and so had not voted for it in the first place, but he would vote in favor of its being repealed, and did so.

Alderman Warren, of the First ward, was the other alderman who was not present at the meeting when the gag ordinance was adopted.

Other matters taken up will be found elsewhere.

GERMANY APPEALS FOR FAIR PLAY

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Berlin, Aug. 3.—Germany is appealing to both the United States and Great Britain for fair play in the Upper Silesia decision, it was revealed today following chancellor Wirth's speech before the Bremen Chamber of Commerce Tuesday afternoon. The speech had been awaited with great eagerness because it had been expected that the chancellor would pledge the resignation of his cabinet unless Germany got a satisfactory decision regarding her claims in Upper Silesia. The chancellor made no mention of resignation.

The chancellor declared that Germany was hopeful that America and Great Britain would answer Germany's appeal for a square deal at the hands of France and Poland.

"This is not a speech of submission but of encouragement to Germany," said the chancellor. "Only through labor can we achieve liberty. The policy of might failed in Upper Silesia which was a fertile productive land when given by us to the Allies. Now it is in ruins. The Allies policy during the past three years has not been based on justice but upon threats. We welcome America and England coming as the advocates of justice."

"Political oppression and boundless conceit rules at Warsaw, preventing peace in Europe. The supreme council does not dare to disappoint Germany. I trust that European solidarity will be based upon mutual desire for freedom and for democracy."

New York Park Mystery.

New York, Aug. 3.—Found in a coma in a park bench where she had been carried by a mysterious stranger, Mrs. Mary Funk, 22, died here today without recovering consciousness. Death was apparently due to opium poisoning.

WOMEN PUT O. K. ON CITY HOME

At the request of Rear Admiral P. J. Higginson, president of the State Charities Aid Association, Ulster county branch, an inspection of the City Home on Flatbush avenue was made on July 4, by Mrs. Thomas Hickey and Mrs. William M. Fessenden, who have submitted the following report of their inspection to association:

"In compliance with your request the committee on the City Home made their annual inspection on July 4, 1921. We arrived at 4:30 p. m., were received by the superintendent, Mr. Edmonston, and escorted through the building, except the men's department, and afforded every facility for making a proper inspection."

Number of inmates. Thirty-six, nineteen male and seventeen female, one negro woman, ages thirty to eighty-three. Of the women three are German, one Polish, two Irish, eleven United States. Religious consolation afforded regularly by Protestant and Catholic clergy. Medical attention weekly, often if necessary. If hospital care is necessary inmates are removed to the Kingston City Hospital or Benedictine Hospital and cared for as a city charge.

Water supply, sanitation, heat, fire control and ventilation have all been fully covered in our previous reports. Amusement and recreation are afforded by various charitable organizations. Funds are contributed by these societies and individuals provide ice cream, lemonade and cake through the year, particularly on Sunday when a late dinner is served at 2 o'clock. Two meals are provided on Sunday, three on week days. No bedridden inmates. Two in hospitals, one of these is blind. In our last report we recommended a bake oven conveniently placed to save time, fuel and labor, and a new floor in dining room. These we are glad to say will be put in this year by the alms commissioners. The men's quarters have been newly painted, the labor being provided by men who applied for meals to the superintendent. This was a great saving in cost.

The whole atmosphere is kind and Mr. and Mrs. Edmonston and Miss Edmonston strive to make the place homelike. The food is wholesome cooked in a kitchen that for cleanliness and convenience would delight a housekeeper.

A citizen, taxpayer and a lady accompanied your committee, both expressed approval and pleasure over the conduct of the Home, as evidenced in the appearance of the inmates and the condition of the Home.

Your committee congratulates the city on having such a Home for its needy, worthy poor, no longer able to care for themselves, and in having as its superintendent a man of Mr. Edmonston's caliber.

CRAIG CONFERS WITH DE VALERA

So Says Report From Dublin While Sinn Fein Ambassador in London Denies That This Is True.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Dublin, Aug. 3.—It was learned on the best of authority today that the cause of the Sinn Fein's silence regarding the Irish peace negotiations is the fact that negotiations are proceeding between Eamonn de Valera and Sir James Craig, premier of Ulster.

It was reported that de Valera has been sounding Sir James Craig since last Friday upon the reservations and guarantees which the Ulster Unionists desire.

Though de Valera and the Ulster premier have not met in person, the negotiations are said to be proceeding by means of couriers. The Irish people, not knowing the reason for the delay and the absence of official statement, are becoming impatient and pessimistic predictions have been made in some quarters.

The responsible leaders of the Sinn Fein refuse to discuss the possible outcome of the conversations between Southern and Northern Ireland, but it is understood that they have reached or are reaching a satisfactory basis.

London, Aug. 3.—Art O'Brien, head of the Irish self-determination league and so-called "Sinn Fein ambassador in London," who returned from Dublin today, denied that the Sinn Fein is in communication with the Ulster Unionists at Belfast.

"Peace matters are progressing satisfactory at Dublin," said O'Brien.

Earlier in the day the London Times had printed the flat assertion that the Dublin Republicans were negotiating with the heads of the Ulster government of Ulster.

The parliamentary report of the London Times in discussing the Irish peace situation said: "It is wrong to assume that nothing is happening in the Irish negotiations because no announcement has been made. There is every reason to believe that the Sinn Fein is in direct communication with Belfast and is trying to reach an understanding with the Northern Unionists. Obviously this is a question of great difficulty, requiring delicate handling and much time."

CONVENTIONS AND MORE PRIMARIES

The unofficial Republican county and city conventions will be held at the Kingston Opera House tomorrow, beginning at noon.

The unofficial county convention will name candidates for party position on the September primary ballot for the offices of county clerk, coroner and assemblyman; the unofficial city convention, which will be held immediately following the county convention, will do the same for the offices of mayor, alderman-at-large and judge of the city court.

Unofficial caucuses will be held in each ward tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock for party designation on the September primary ballot candidates from each ward for supervisor and alderman.

Republican Ward Caucuses.

Caucuses will be held in each of the wards in the City of Kingston, tomorrow night, August 4th, at 8:00 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of recommending to the Republican Electors of the several wards, candidates for the office of Supervisor and Alderman for such wards. These caucuses will be held open for voting for one hour and will be held in the several wards of the city at the following places:

First Ward—Wiltzweg Hose Engine House, Fair street.

Second Ward—Corner O'Neil street and Foxhall avenue.

Third Ward—City Hall.

Fourth Ward—Myers's Barber Shop, Hasbrouck avenue.

Fifth Ward—Cordis Hose Engine House, Delaware avenue.

Sixth Ward—Lankinsky Building, 145 Hasbrouck avenue.

Seventh Ward—Cornell Hose House, Abel street.

Sangerties Pastor Resigns.

The Rev. J. V. Wemple, pastor of the Reformed Church in Sangerties for over ten years, has tendered his resignation to take effect September 1st. His health is the cause of the Rev. Wemple's official severance. On Monday evening the consistory reluctantly accepted his resignation and only after it was fully realized that he could not follow his duties.

Main Street Real Estate Sold.

Harry B. Winne and Myrtle T. Winne his wife have conveyed by deed the residence property at 185 Main street, corner Emerson street, to Frank W. Wolffert of 259 Washington avenue. Mr. Wolffert has also purchased a parcel of land on Main street near Emerson street of Anna L. Brooks and Mary Stroud Hyatt.

ASQUITH WOULD PARE NAVY COST

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Aug. 3.—Stormy debate was expected in the house of commons this afternoon over the navy estimates. Former Premier Asquith, new leader of the opposition in commons, has given notice that he would speak against the policy of the government.

Mr. Asquith believes that the forthcoming disarmament conference at Washington justifies the British admiralty in slowing down its construction of warships. He declared that no arrangements should be made for the construction of additional dreadnaughts for at least a few months until it could be seen how the disarmament movement was going to work out.

Belief prevailed that the debate would elicit from the government its real attitude toward disarmament so that the nation would know what policy the British delegates are going to pursue when the conference opens. In this connection it was pointed out that Premier Lloyd-George has already notified the house of commons that Great Britain will not discontinue the construction of capital ships regardless of the disarmament conference. The premier, speaking for the admiralty, had said that the British navy would continue to replace worn-out capital ships because the life of the nation depended upon her sea strength.

Asquith's speech was generally regarded as an answer to Premier Lloyd-George. He based his plea for curtailment of sea armaments upon the need for financial retrenchment to cut down the heavy tax burden of the nation.

The parliamentary fight this afternoon centered about the proposal for the immediate construction of four great battleships. The admiralty contends they are needed to maintain the British navy up to its standard and also to meet the warship construction of other nations.

CALIFORNIA CHICKEN SPREE.

River of Moonshine Demoralized Poultry and Birds.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Los Angeles, Aug. 3.—Many are the trials and tribulations of prohibition as enforced in Southern California.

But the residents of a fashionable Los Angeles district that was recently "raided" by Federal authorities believe they have a new brand of prohibition grievance.

When the officers charged upon the toes of Amendment 18, occupants of a beautiful home, they obtained several hundred gallons of moonshine whiskey with a kick like a Government mule, several hundred gallons of an ambrosial compound known as mash, a high still and odds and ends of other things that give the boot to bootleggers.

Either in an effort to get rid of the contraband, or through accident, some of the mash was poured from the windows of the house of guilt, ran into the yard and penetrated even into the sacred precinct of the neighborhood chicken runs.

When the early risers among the barnyard denizens awoke next morning and went foraging they made a discovery and gave the high sign to the rest of the flock. After which the following events happened.

A scouting pigeon saw the chickens from afar and after wiggling home to his family proceeded to fall off the water while a modest and retiring spinstern insulted the family cat and pursued him until Tom took refuge in a tree and refused to come down for hours.

A respectable pullet staggered about in public places and flapped her wings and attempted to crow.

The uppen ten of a choice and snobbish breed of Leghorns refused to seek the privacy of their perches at night, but slept on their backs with the hot polio, their feet extended to the heavens.

A mocking bird which for many nights had been serenading neighborhood spooners suddenly forgot his dulcet strains for a squawk that some said sounded like a basso-tenor of an adolescent.

Pigeons for miles around swooped down and quarreled with the chickens as they pecked at the mash, then went off to a cool corner and slept it off, regardless of small boys and dogs.

Flies in that part of the city swarmed down in that one particular spot, retiring therefrom in an aerial shimmy or clustering in bunches on beddym and kitchen screens and sleeping so thoroughly one authority believes he heard them snore.

Dr. Seeley's Will.

The will of the late Rev. Dr. Frank H. Seeley of Delhi, has been admitted to probate in Delaware county surrogate's court. To his wife Henrietta Seeley, he gives the sum of $10,000 and life use of the household goods. To his son, the Rev. Dr. F. P. Seeley of this city, he gives $1,000 and his library. To his daughter, Louise Estabrook of Brandon, Vt., $10,000. The remainder of the estate is to be divided equally among the five children, Frank B. Seeley of Kingston, Louise Estabrook of Brandon, Vt., Carl H. Seeley of Buffalo, George W. Seeley of Taunton, Mass., and Ralph H. Seeley of Brandon, Vt. The estimated value of the real estate is $2,500 and the estimated value of the personal property is $59,000.

WILL ARREST GOVERNOR SMALL

Still Asserts He Is Immune From Arrest But Exact Plan Of Campaign Is Not Yet Made Clear.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Springfield, Ill., Aug. 3.—An open clash between Governor Len Small of Illinois and the legal authorities of Sangamon county today awaited merely the arrival of the chief executive in Springfield.

With Sheriff Henry Mester determined to arrest the governor on three warrants, interest centered chiefly on the measures the governor will use to prevent his "capture."

Although the governor has not receded from his stand that he is "immune from arrest," it was learned today his attorneys had practically decided to drop the habeas corpus action for the present in event he is arrested.

The governor, it was stated authoritatively, is expected here within 48 hours.

His legal batteries meanwhile were preparing for the preliminary skirmishes in court should the sheriff succeed in serving the warrants charging him with misuse of state interest funds. It was learned here the first court action would be the entering of a motion before Judge E. S. Smith for a change of venue. This apparently sounded a death knell to the habeas corpus action at first contemplated by his legal advisers as a means of testing the authority of the county officials.

In effect this would be tantamount to admitting that the governor is not immune from arrest. His adherents point out, however, that the governor might waive the question of immunity for the time being but would make it one of his principal weapons at his ultimate trial.

Attorney George Gillespie, one of the governor's legal advisers, today served notice on state's attorney Fred Mortimer that a motion for a change of venue for Vernon Curtis, a co-defendant with the governor, would be entered on August 22. This action must be taken before Judge Smith, who ordered the governor arrested last week. Curtis is named defendant in the same indictment brought against the governor. It was considered significant here that the governor's legal advisers were obtaining affidavits relating to the alleged prejudiced sentiment throughout Sangamon county. This was taken to indicate that the governor would be a party to the Curtis motion. Representatives of the state's attorneys office were meanwhile gathering affidavits testifying that the sentiment of the county is not prejudiced.

In order to obtain a change of venue both the governor and Curtis must prove that Judge Smith and public sentiment here are entirely prejudiced to their case. The decision rests solely with the court.

INCOME TAX LEAKS WILL BE PROBED

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Aug. 3.—A thorough investigation and, if necessary, a "thorough house cleaning" will be made of the bureau of internal revenue as a result of grave charges that much highly confidential information concerning income tax reports and other matters has been getting into unauthorized hands, it was announced today by David H. Blair, the new commissioner of internal revenue.

FOUR MEN KILLED IN POWDER MILL

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Uniontown, Pa., Aug. 3.—Four men were killed by a terrific explosion in the press mill at the Oriental plant of the DuPont Powder Company five miles from here at noon today. The plant was wrecked and the concussion of the explosion was felt many miles away. The dead men were Harry Hayden, Charles Gillincher, Paul Wilson and Curtis Cockrell.

Insurance Agent Murdered.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Altoona, Pa., Aug. 3.—William E. Niehaus, 32, of McKeesport, claim agent for an insurance company, was shot to death on a street here early today while returning from a suburb. The police believe he resisted a highwayman and the robber shot him.

Boxing Champion Electrocuted.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Laporte Files Certificate.

George Henry Laporte, Jr., of Brookline has filed a certificate with the county clerk that he intends to conduct a business under the name of the Re-uth Grove Company. The purpose of the company is to sell and deal in land, buildings and materials.

Dance at Stone Ridge.

Rafle's orchestra of this city has been engaged to furnish the music at the Friday night popular dances for the remainder of the season at the Grange Hall, Stone Ridge.

ARMISTICE DAY FOR CONFERENCE

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Aug. 3.—The United States has officially proposed November 11 as the date on which to assemble the international disarmament and Far East conference in Washington, it was announced today.

The proposal has been put forward informally through diplomatic quarters and thus far there have been no responses.

The November 11 date was first suggested by President Harding in talking with newspaper correspondents. The suggestion was in the nature of a "trial balloon," the president and his advisors desiring to see what reaction there would be from abroad as to the date. After observing the effect of the suggestion, the state department decided to put the date informally before the powers concerned, and this was done some days ago.

INTOXICATED, HE DROVE HIS AUTO

That is Charge Police Lodged Against Alexander Oakley, of Lomontville Who is Held to Await Grand Jury's Action—Other Cases in Police Court.

Alexander Oakley, 31 years old, of Lomontville, and Nicholas Reis, 33 years old, of Hackensack, N. J., were arrested on Cornell street on Tuesday afternoon about 5 o'clock by Sergeant Hanley and Officer Roedell after the police had received several complaints of a pair of drunken men riding on Broadway in an automobile.

The pair were trailed to Cornell street, and when the police arrived it is claimed they found Oakley asleep leaning on the steering wheel while Reis was slumped down in the seat beside him. The pair were taken to police headquarters where bail was furnished by Oakley for his appearance today, but Reis was stubborn and refused to sign a bail bond, and so spent the night in the county jail.

This morning Oakley waived examination to await the action of the next grand jury, as under the state law driving a car while intoxicated is a felony. Bail was fixed at $500. Oakley in reply to questions by Judge Schirick said that he was married and had three children, aged 12, 9 and 2 years respectively. His wife was also living and they had a farm at Lomontville. His father was dead, but his mother made her home with him.

Oakley said he had sold a farm and drove to Kingston Tuesday in his Overland touring car to notify a farm agency that the farm was sold. Reis, whose sister resides at Lomontville, accompanied him to Kingston.

Reis, when arraigned, pleaded guilty to public intoxication. He said he had six children. Four of them were in St. Mary's Home at Port Jervis, and the other two lived with his sister at Lomontville. He said that he paid the Home $35 a month for the support of the four children there. He had not paid for the July board as yet he said.

Judge Schirick imposed a fine of $10 on his plea of guilty, but suspended sentence provided that next week Reis send the Home the $35 he owed for July board, and also the $10 he had been fined to buy new clothing for the four children. This he agreed to do, and he was warned by Judge Schirick that if he failed to do so he would be rearrested and forced to pay the fine into the city treasury.

White Man Played Injun.

Henry Pollard of Ansonia, was arrested on Tuesday afternoon by Officer Sachloff on a charge of hawking Indian salve without first obtaining a permit from the chief of police.

Pollard said that in order to sell the Indian remedies he dressed himself up as an Indian chief. When arrested he was in Indian costume on the Strand.

He was discharged with the warning that he must first obtain a license or leave town. He said he would leave town.

Tennis Tournay Postponed.

The opening of the annual Forsyth tennis tournament was postponed yesterday on account of rain. However, with fair weather it is hoped that the courts will be in shape to play the opening rounds of the men's and boys' singles Thursday evening. All contestants should keep in touch with the director at Forsyth Park so that there may be no delay in starting the matches as soon as weather permits. In view of the fact that the ladies' and girls' singles did not receive enough entries, it has been decided to offer cups in a doubles competition open to men and boys. These matches will begin on Monday, August 8, and all entries should be in by the preceding Saturday. The same rules will govern as in the singles matches.

Will Build a Home.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Burchell of New York city have purchased of W. F. Abernethy the building lot fronting on Washington avenue in the rear of the residence of Lewis S. Hommel, corner of Pearl street and the avenue. Mr. Burchell has already contracted for the building of a handsome residence on the lot, which is expected to be completed by October 1, which they will occupy as their permanent home. The Burchells are the kind of people that will be welcomed as residents of Kingston city.

BOOZE SEIZURE CASES ADJOURNED

Grand Hotel is Situated in Three Counties and Exact Geography is an Element That Must Be Settled.

The hearing before Judge Joseph M. Fowler at county court chambers this morning in the matter of search and seizure proceedings conducted recently by state troopers at the New Grand Hotel at Highmount was adjourned until August 17 in order to allow sufficient time for a survey to be made of the premises to determine whether the liquor seized by the troopers was found in the county of Ulster, Delaware or Greene. The hotel is situated over the place where the boundary lines of the three counties meet.

The search and seizure proceedings were conducted by twenty-three of the state troopers who arrived in automobiles and went through the hotel from end to end. They found a tin can which they claim contains alcohol, nine quarts of champagne, one quart of Scotch whiskey, a bottle of cognac and a bottle partly filled with applejack. At the hearing before Judge Fowler, District Attorney Traver appeared for The People and stated that the question of jurisdiction had been raised by reason of the boundary lines of the counties meeting within the hotel.

The case of The People against Frank Seiden, proprietor of the New Grand Hotel, charged with possession of liquor for beverage purposes, was heard before Justice of the Peace H. W. Misner at Pine Hill on Tuesday. DuBois J. Gillette appeared for District Attorney Traver; George E. Speenburgh, of Fleischmanns appeared for Mr. Seiden, who waived examination and furnished bail for his appearance when the grand jury meets.

Johnson Case Adjourned.

A hearing also was had before Judge Fowler this morning in the case of The People against Richard A. Johnson, also known as Charles Johnson, whose saloon at Union and Chambers streets recently was visited by city police under a search and seizure warrant. The police seized three jugs, one bottle and one keg, all said to contain wine, and 17 bottles of beer known as home brew. Johnson was represented by Andrew J. Cook. A question was raised as to procedure under the Mullan-Gage amendment, and the case was adjourned for one week. District Attorney Traver appeared for The People.

RUM RUNNER ONE OF WHISKEY FLEET

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Aug. 3.—Sensational arrests were in prospect today as the result of overnight developments in the investigation which has followed the seizure of the alleged rum running schooner Henry L. Marshall.

The federal authorities were said to have information which might prove the schooner a member of the "whiskey fleet" which has been bringing liquor into this country from the Bahamas. Revenue agents said that the fleet was operated by a million dollar syndicate and that some wealthy men were financially interested in the rum smuggling business.

QUOTATIONS AT PUBLIC MARKET

This morning found a shortage of peaches, sweet corn and apples at the public market on Field Court, and more could have been sold if offered for sale. Potatoes are also scarce. The wholesale quotations today were:

Plums—$1 a basket.
Peaches—75c to $1.50 a basket.
Pears—$1 a basket.
Apples—50 to 60c a basket.
Tomatoes—75c to $1 a basket.
Beets—40c a dozen bunches.
Carrots—35c a dozen bunches.
Cucumbers—50c to $1 a 100.
Cucumber Pickles—$1 to 75c a 100.

Sweet Corn—$1 to $1.25 a 100 ears.

Bandit du Luxe.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 3.—Not content with "lifting" $5 in cash and a watch valued at $20 from the pockets of M. F. Smith, an armed bandit ordered Smith to "shed" his silk shirt. Smith told the police the bandit was a very neatly-dressed youth and wore a nobby straw hat and patent leather shoes. The bandit stopped Smith just after he had alighted from a street car and while he was en route to his home in the suburbs. After relieving Smith of the above-mentioned articles the bandit vanished in the darkness.

Palopoli Out on Bail.

James Palopoli, who was brought to the Ulster county jail from Marlborough, Monday evening to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of assault in the second degree and for carrying a concealed weapon, John Condon being the complaining witness, was released in $2,000 bail before County Judge Joseph M. Fowler, Tuesday evening. The bail was furnished by Italian friends of Palopoli, one being a friend of the grand jury on a property man who it was said owns property in Marlborough valued at $16,000 the other being a man owning a fruit farm valued at $9,000.

CITY'S GAG ORDINANCE REPEALED BY ALDERMEN AT MAYOR'S SUGGESTION

Mayor Canfield Tells Council That While He Would Be Willing to Withstand Attack Made on Ordinance He Did Not Feel He Should Ask Them to Place Themselves in a Similar Position.

The ordinance regulating public speech which the common council adopted on July 5, and which was later amended on July 20, was repealed by the aldermen at the suggestion of Mayor Canfield, who had prepared both the ordinance and the amended ordinance, at a meeting of the common council held Tuesday evening. There was a large attendance of citizens at the session, who were interested in the public hearing announced on the gag law, but the mayor's suggestion and unanimous acceptance of the suggestion by the aldermen made it unnecessary to hold the public hearing.

Mayor Canfield, who was extended the privilege of the floor, said:

"We have worked together in passing legislation, not to gain favor but to advance the interests of the city. All of our authority originates in the will of the majority. The will of the majority preponderates in the end and directs public affairs.

"I know that it has been your purpose to legislate for the good of the community. In doing so economic and intellectual principles should exercise the proper influence. Illogical or exaggerated statements should have no weight or bearing. In treating of objections we have the right to consider whether they come, why they come and how they come. We must decide whether our legislation is a real object of apprehension or not.

"Many people do not seem to grasp the one great principle of government which all great statesmen have understood, that while it is important to guard society against the oppression of its rulers, it is of equal importance and more often necessary to guard one part of society against the injustice of the other part.

"I have always been a strong adherent and advocate of the freedom of the press and of freedom of speech. The question, however, whether a city can control its streets and the uses of its streets, is entirely another question, and all the courts have so said. The fact that the appellate division of the supreme court has stated that an ordinance in the form of the one passed by your honorable body is a legal, reasonable and proper one, would seem to be sufficient to satisfy anyone in regard to its propriety. While I would be willing to withstand the attack made upon it, I do not feel that I should ask the members of this body to place themselves in a similar position although many of you have told me that you are favorable to the ordinance. I, therefore, suggest that no matter what your personal views may be in the matter, you rescind it."

Alderman George Schick, of the Third ward, said that he would like to explain his vote. He had not been present at the meeting the ordinance was adopted, and so had not voted for it in the first place, but he would vote in favor of its being repealed, and did so.

Alderman Warren, of the First ward, was the other alderman who was not present at the meeting when the gag ordinance was adopted.

Other matters taken up will be found elsewhere.

WOMEN PUT O. K. ON CITY HOME

At the request of Rear Admiral W. J. Higginson, president of the St. Charles Aid Association, Ulster county branch, an inspection of the City Home on Flatbush avenue was made on July 4, by Mrs. Thomas Hickey and Mrs. William N. Fessenden, who have submitted the following report of their inspection to association:

"In compliance with your request the committee on the City Home made their annual inspection on July 4, 1921. We arrived at 4:30 p. m., were received by the superintendent, Mr. Edmonston, and escorted through the building, except the men's department, and afforded every facility for making a proper inspection.

"Number of inmates. Thirty-six, nineteen male and seventeen female, one negro woman, ages thirty to eighty-three. Of the women three are German, one Polish, two Irish, eleven United States. Religious consolation afforded regularly by Protestant and Catholic clergy. Medical attention weekly, often if necessary. If hospital care is necessary inmates are removed to the Kingston City Hospital or Benedictine Hospital and cared for as a city charge.

"Water supply, sanitation, heat, fire control and ventilation have all been fully covered in our previous reports.

"Amusement and recreation are afforded by various charitable organizations. Funds are contributed by these societies and individuals provide ice cream lemonade and cake through the year, particularly on Sunday when a late dinner is served at 2 o'clock. Two meals are provided on Sunday, three on week days. No bedridden inmates. Two in hospitals, one of these is blind. In our last report we recommended a bake oven conveniently placed to save time, fuel and labor, and a new floor in dining room. These we are glad to say will be put in this year by the alms commissioners. The men's quarters have been newly painted, the labor being provided by men who applied for meals to the superintendent. This was a great saving in cost.

"The whole atmosphere is kind and Mr. and Mrs. Edmonston and Miss Edmonston strive to make the place homelike. The food is wholesome cooked in a kitchen that for cleanliness and convenience would delight a housekeeper.

"A citizen, taxpayer and a lady accompanied your committee, both expressed approval and pleasure over the conduct of the Home, as evidenced in the appearance of the inmates and the condition of the Home.

"Your committee congratulates the city on having such a home for its needy, worthy poor, no longer able to care for themselves, and in having as its superintendent a man of Mr. Edmonston's caliber.

GERMANY APPEALS FOR FAIR PLAY

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Berlin, Aug. 3.—Germany is appealing to both the United States and Great Britain for fair play in the Upper Silesian decision. It was revealed today following chancellor Wirth's speech before the Bremen Chamber of Commerce Tuesday afternoon. The speech had been awaited with great eagerness because it had been expected that the chancellor would pledge the resignation of his cabinet unless Germany got a satisfactory decision regarding her claims in Upper Silesia. The chancellor made no mention of resignation.

The chancellor declared that Germany was hopeful that America and Great Britain would answer Germany's appeal for a square deal at the hands of France and Poland.

"This is not a speech of submission but of encouragement to Germany," said the chancellor. "Only through labor can we achieve liberty. The policy of might failed in Upper Silesia which was a fertile production land when given by us to the Allies. Now it is in ruins. The Allies policy during the past three years has not been based on justice but upon threats. We welcome America and England coming as the advocates of justice.

"Political passion and boundary dispute rules at Warsaw, preventing peace in Europe. The supreme council does not dare to champion Germany. I trust that European solidarity will be based upon mutual desire for freedom and for democracy."

CRAIG CONFERS WITH DE VALERA

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, Aug. 3.—Stormy debate was expected in the house of commons this afternoon over the navy estimates. Former Premier Asquith, now leader of the opposition in commons, has given notice that he would speak against the policy of the government.

Mr. Asquith believes that the forthcoming disarmament conference at Washington justifies the British admiralty in slowing down its construction of warships. He declared that no arrangements should be made for the construction of additional dreadnaughts for at least a few months until it could be seen how the disarmament movement was going to work out.

Belief prevailed that the debate would elicit from the government its real attitude toward disarmament, and that the nation would know what policy the British delegates are going to pursue when the conference opens. In this connection it was pointed out that Premier Lloyd George has already notified the house of commons that Great Britain will not discontinue the construction of capital ships regardless of the disarmament conference. The premier, speaking for the admiralty, had said that the British navy would continue to replace worn-out capital ships because the life of the nation depended upon her sea strength.

Asquith's speech was generally regarded as an answer to Premier Lloyd George. He based his plea for curtailment of sea armaments upon the need for financial retrenchment to cut down the heavy tax burden of the nation.

The parliamentary fight this afternoon centered about the proposal for the immediate construction of four great battleships. The admiralty contends they are needed to maintain the British navy up to its standard and also to meet the warship construction of other nations.

CALIFORNIA CHICKEN SPREE.

Hiver of Moonshine Demoralized Poultry and Birds.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Los Angeles, Aug. 3.—Many are the trials and tribulations of prohibition as enforced in Southern California.

But the residents of a fashionable Los Angeles district that was recently "raided" by federal authorities believe they have a new brand of prohibition grievance.

When the officers charged upon the foes of Amendment 18, occupants of a beautiful home, they obtained several hundred gallons of moonshine whiskey with a kick like a Government mule, several hundred gallons of an ambrosial compound known as mash, a high still and odds and ends of other things that give the boot to bootlegger.

Either in an effort to get rid of the contraband, or through accident, some of the mash was poured from the windows of the house of guilt, ran into the yard and penetrated even into the sacred precinct of the neighborhood chicken runs.

When the early risers among the barnyard denizens awoke next morning and went foraging they made a discovery and gave the high sign to the rest of the flock. After which the following events happened.

A scouting pigeon saw the chickens from afar and after wiggling home to his family proceeded to fall off the water wagon.

An erstwhile modest and retiring spinster hen insulted the family cat and pursued him until Tom took refuge in a tree and refused to come down for hours.

A respectable pullet staggered about in public places and flapped her wings and attempted to crow.

The upper ten of a choice and snobbish breed of Lophorins refused to seek the privacy of their perches at night, but slept on their backs with the hot polloi, their feet extended to the heavens.

A mocking bird which for many nights had been serenading neighborhood spooners suddenly forgot his dulcet strains for a squawk that some said sounded like a basso-tenor of an adolescent.

Pigeons for miles around swooped down and quarreled with the chickens as they partook of the mash, then went off to a cool corner and slept it off, regardless of small boys and dogs.

Flies in that part of the city swarmed down in that one particular spot, retiring therefrom in an aerial shimmy or clustering in bunches on bedroom and kitchen screens and sleeping so thoroughly one authority believes he heard them snore.

Now the neighbors believe they have a legitimate cause for complaint and want to know if there is not some less drastic measure of disposing of, to misquote old Omar, "the corn that can with logic absolute, amendment 18 utterly confound."

WILL ARREST GOVERNOR SMALL

Will Asserts He Is Immune From Arrest But Exact Plan Of Campaign Is Not Yet Made Clear.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 3.—An open clash between Governor Len Small of Illinois and the legal authorities of Sangamon county today awaited merely the arrival of the chief executive in Springfield.

With Sheriff Henry Meester determined to arrest the governor on three warrants, interest centered chiefly on the measures the governor will use to prevent his "capture."

Although the governor has not receded from his stand that he is "immune from arrest," it was learned today his attorneys had practically decided to drop the habeas corpus action for the present in event he is arrested.

The governor, it was stated authoritatively, is expected here within 48 hours.

His legal batteries meanwhile were preparing for the preliminary skirmishes in court should the sheriff succeed in serving the warrants charging him with misuse of state interest funds. It was learned here the first court action would be the entering of a motion before Judge E. S. Smith for a change of venue. This apparently sounded a death knell to the habeas corpus action at first contemplated by his legal advisers as a means of testing the authority of the county officials.

In effect this would be tantamount to admitting that the governor is not immune from arrest. His adherents point out, however, that the governor might waive the question of immunity for the time being but would make it one of his principal weapons at his ultimate trial.

Attorney George Gillespie, one of the governor's legal advisers, today served notice on state's attorney Fred Mortimer that a motion for a change of venue for Vernon Curtis, a co-defendant with the governor, would be entered on August 22. This action must be taken before Judge Smith, who ordered the governor arrested last week. Curtis is named defendant in the same indictment brought against the governor. It was considered significant here that the governor's legal advisers were obtaining affidavits relating to the alleged prejudiced sentiment throughout Sangamon county. This was taken to indicate that the governor would be a party to the Curtis motion. Representatives of the state's attorneys office were meanwhile gathering affidavits testifying that the sentiment of the county is not prejudiced.

In order to obtain a change of venue both the governor and Curtis must prove that Judge Smith and public sentiment here are entirely prejudiced to their case. The decision rests solely with the court.

INCOME TAX LEAKS WILL BE PROBED

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 3.—A thorough investigation and, if necessary, a "thorough house cleaning" will be made of the bureau of internal revenue as a result of grave charges that much highly confidential information concerning income tax reports and other matters has been getting into unauthorized hands. It was announced today by David H. Blair, the new commissioner of internal revenue.

FOUR MEN KILLED IN POWDER MILL

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Uniontown, Pa., Aug. 3.—Four men were killed by a terrific explosion in the press mill at the Oriental plant of the DuPont Powder Company five miles from here at noon today. The plant was wrecked and the concussion of the explosion was felt many miles away. The dead men are: Harry Hayden, Charles Gillinger, Paul Wilson and Curtis Cockrell.

ARMISTICE DAY FOR CONFERENCE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 3.—The United States has officially proposed November 11 as the date on which to assemble the international disarmament and Far East conference in Washington. It was announced today.

The proposal has been put forward informally through diplomatic quarters and thus far there have been no responses.

The November 11 date was first suggested by President Harding in talking with newspaper correspondents. The suggestion was in the nature of a "trial balloon," the president and his advisers desired to see what reaction there would be from abroad as to the date. After observing the effect of the suggestion, the state department decided to put the date informally before the powers concerned, and this was done some days ago.

BOOZE SEIZURE CASES ADJOURNED

Grand Hotel is Situated in Three Counties and Exact Geography is an Element That Must Be Settled.

The hearing before Judge Joseph M. Fowler at county court chambers this morning in the matter of search and seizure proceedings conducted recently by state troopers at the New Grand Hotel at Highmount was adjourned until August 17 in order to allow sufficient time for a survey to be made of the premises to determine whether the liquor seized by the troopers was found in the county of Ulster, Delaware or Greene. The hotel is situated over the place where the boundary lines of the three counties meet.

The search and seizure proceedings were conducted by twenty-three of the state troopers who arrived in automobiles and went through the hotel from end to end. They found a tin can which they claim contains alcohol, nine quarts of champagne, one quart of Scotch whiskey, a bottle of cognac and a bottle partly filled with applejack. At the hearing before Judge Fowler, District Attorney Traver appeared for The People and stated that the question of jurisdiction had been raised by reason of the boundary lines of the counties meeting within the hotel.

The case of The People against Frank Seiden, proprietor of the New Grand Hotel, charged with possession of liquor for beverage purposes, was heard before Justice of the Peace H. W. Miner at Pine Hill on Tuesday. DuBois J. Gillette appeared for District Attorney Traver; George E. Speenburgh of Fleischmanns appeared for Mr. Seiden, who waived examination and furnished bail for his appearance when the grand jury meets.

Johnson Case Adjourned.

A hearing also was had before Judge Fowler this morning in the case of The People against Richard A. Johnson, also known as Charles Johnson, whose saloon at Union and Chambers streets recently was visited by city police under a search and seizure warrant. The police seized three jugs, one bottle and one keg, said to contain wine and 17 bottles of beer known as home brew. Johnson was represented by Andrew Cook. A question was raised as to procedure under the Mulligan-Gage amendment, and the case was adjourned for one week. District Attorney Traver appeared for The People.

INTOXICATED, HE DROVE HIS AUTO

That is Charge Police Lodged Against Alexander Oakley, of Lomontville Who is Held to Await Grand Jury's Action—Other Cases in Police Court.

Alexander Oakley, 31 years old, of Lomontville, and Nicholas Reis, 33 years old, of Hackensack, N. J., were arrested on Cornell street on Tuesday afternoon about 5 o'clock by Sergeant Hanley and Officer Rosdell after the police had received several complaints of a pair of drunken men riding on Broadway in an automobile.

The pair were trailed to Cornell street, and when the police arrived it is claimed they found Oakley asleep leaning on the steering wheel while Reis was slumped down in the seat beside him. The pair were taken to police headquarters where bail was furnished by Oakley for his appearance today, but Reis was stubborn and refused to sign a bail bond, and so spent the night in the county jail.

This morning Oakley waived examination to await the action of the next grand jury, as under the state law driving a car while intoxicated is a felony. Bail was fixed at $500. Oakley in reply to questions by Judge Schrick said that he was married and had three children, aged 12, 9 and 2 years respectively. His wife was also living and they had a farm at Lomontville. His father was dead, but his mother made her home with him.

Oakley said he had sold a farm and drove to Kingston Tuesday in his Overland touring car to notify a farm agency that the farm was sold. Reis, whose sister resides at Lomontville, accompanied him to Kingston.

Reis, when arraigned, pleaded guilty to public intoxication. He said he had six children. Four of them were in St. Mary's Home at Port Jervis, and the other two lived with his sister at Lomontville. He said that he paid the Home $35 a month for the support of the four children there. He had not paid for the July board as yet he said.

Judge Schrick imposed a fine of $10 on his plea of guilty, but suspended sentence provided that next week Reis send the Home the $35 he owed for July board, and also the $10 he had been fined to buy some clothing for the four children. This he agreed to do, and he was warned by Judge Schrick that if he failed to do so he would be rearrested and forced to pay the fine into the city treasury.

RUM RUNNER ONE OF WHISKEY FLEET

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 3.—Sensational arrests were in prospect today as the result of overnight developments in the investigation which has followed the seizure of the alleged rum running schooner Henry L. Marshall.

The federal authorities were said to have information which might prove the schooner a member of the "whiskey fleet" which has been bringing liquor into this country from the Bahamas. Revenue agents said that the fleet was operated by a million dollar syndicate and that some wealthy men were financially interested in the rum smuggling business.

QUOTATIONS AT PUBLIC MARKET

TRANSIT TOURNEY POSTPONED

The opening of the annual Forsyth tennis tournament was postponed yesterday on account of rain. However, with fair weather it is hoped that the courts will be in shape to play the opening rounds of the men's and boys' singles Thursday evening. All contestants should keep in touch with the director at Forsyth Park so that there may be no delay in starting the matches as soon as weather permits. In view of the fact that the ladies' and girls' singles did not receive enough entries, it has been decided to offer prizes in a doubles competition open to men and boys. These matches will begin on Monday, August 4, and all entries should be in by the preceding Saturday. The same rules will govern as in the singles matches.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

MR. POLAR BEAR.

"This weather, this weather," said Mr. Polar Bear, "is quite the most foolish kind of weather. I've really no idea what people want to have such weather for."

"Well," said Mrs. Polar Bear, "I suppose the people really have nothing to do about it, because up North, from where we came, we had nothing to do with the weather."

"Neither did the occasional people who came that way have anything to do with it."

"Nor did the walrus family have anything to do with it, but they used to follow the icy weather about."

"The weather has things its own way. That's what I think. And I really believe I am right."

"We all had to follow the weather about when we were up North, you know, going along with the nice icy cakes."

"That's so," agreed Mr. Polar Bear. "But all the same I do think this weather is foolish. It never was this way up North."

"I've heard some people at the zoo, who've come from other places, and they've talked that way, too. They've said that the climates they were used to never got as hot as this. And I've thought it was sensible talk, for when weather gets as hot as this is, I believe in complaining."

"To be sure, it won't do any good. I know that much. But I'm a cranky fellow anyway and I might as well complain about the weather as anything."

"The weather is used to being complained about. The weather is hardened to it."

"But oh, dear me, to think of wearing a great fur coat on a day like this!"

"And yet, what can I do about it? I can't take off my fur coat. I must wear it all the time."

"It's the only coat I have. I don't go in for lots of different suits and coats the way some creatures do. The same handsome white coat does me year after year."

"So Nice, So Nice."

"People think it is strange that I can lie on a piece of ice in the winter time. Dear me, that is what I do not understand about the people."

"It is all very well for them to complain in hot weather like this, but when they have cold weather they should be happy."

"No, they complain just as much then. They shiver and they talk of the cold wind and the way everything is freezing."

"That is what I cannot understand. I should think they would be so glad it was cold then that they would hug the ice and the snow and would say:

"Dear ice and snow, how cool and pleasant you are!"

"But no, they complain about it being too cold just as they are complaining now about it being too hot."

"That I simply cannot understand."

"They never seem to be satisfied," said Mrs. Polar Bear. "Still they have better dispositions than we have. We're a cross pair. No one can be friendly with us. About the only thing we'll be friendly with is a cake of ice."

"Still we do play about pleasantly and wave our heads and have good frolics and games by ourselves."

"But we wouldn't be friendly with the people. They're not creatures we care about being friends with! No, not a bit of it."

"We have come from a part of the country where there were very few people and if people came to the zoo to look at us we will never allow more for them than to allow them to look at us, and that we cannot help."

"We won't even be friendly with the keepers."

"Oh dear, oh dear," said Mr. Polar Bear, "it is really horribly hot. I do wish I could get cool."

Just then the keeper gave each of the bears a big piece of ice in each of their cages, and Mr. Polar Bear hugged his piece of ice as did Mrs. Polar Bear.

"Ice! beautiful, beautiful ice," they said, "beloved of bears."

"Ice, ice, ice."

"So nice, so nice, so nice," they repeated over and over again.

Sense Qualities.

Instead of there being only five senses as we usually think, there are probably as many as 15. Four distinct senses, for example, are found in the skin. These are heat, cold, pain and pressure. What we usually call touch is a combination of these sense qualities.

How I Won And How I Lost—Told By Dempsey and Carpenter

Dempsey says, Nuxated Iron used by him as part of his training was in his opinion an important factor of his phenomenal victory over Carpenter as he believes it materially helped to give him that mighty power to withstand Carpenter's hardest hits and that it also helped to put added punch behind his own blows.

Jack Dempsey, Super-Man of the Age

In the great fight Carpenter hit Dempsey with swift powerful blows that had the speed of gun fire. The yelling mob saw him land his famous right on Dempsey's jaw, yet Dempsey never flinched but relentlessly he tore after the Frenchman with his old rip-punch tearing, merciless power, landing terrific punches on head, body and jaw until Carpenter quickly weakened and then another powerful punch and again Dempsey showed himself to be the superman of the age—the greatest Champion the world has ever known.

The London Daily Mail, of July 4th, quotes Carpenter as saying, "Dempsey is the most powerful man I have ever met in the ring. He is incredibly strong. To hit him is like hitting a mountain. To take his punches is like feeling the wallop of an avalanche. If I were asked what led to my defeat, I would say the two tremendous blows Dempsey landed on the nape of my neck. I was not the same after that."

Dempsey says, "I feel I won through greater power, endurance, fighting skill and strategy. I took Carpenter's hardest blows on my chin and while they knocked me back they did not damage me in the least. I am sure Carpenter has not the endurance to stand the hard blows that I can stand, neither has he the strength to deliver them. I understand his methods of training are entirely different from mine. While I believe in scientific boxing still I never lose sight of the important fact that other things being equal it is the man who has the greatest strength, power and endurance that is going to win. In building up these three most important things there is nothing like filling your blood with good old strength-giving iron. In preparing for my great fight with Willard I used Nuxated Iron as part of my training, and I feel that it was such a benefit to me that afterwards I used it whenever I felt I was not quite up to the mark, to help restore my strength, energy and vigor; and when I commenced training for my fight with Carpenter, the supreme test of my life, I again took Nuxated Iron and I people annually.

Jack Kearns, Dempsey's Manager, says: "Knowing what Nuxated Iron had done for Dempsey in the Willard fight I strongly insisted that he use this wonderful strength and blood builder as a part of his training for the fight with Carpenter, and I believe it was an important factor in building up Dempsey's superhuman strength, power and endurance which were such important factors in winning his easy victory."

THE SUMMER HAT CROWN OF GLORY

Seasonable Millinery That Suits Every Type of Face Ideal of the Modistes.

STYLES FOR THE MIDSEASON

Headgear is of Infinite Variety and is From Large Capelines to the Tiny Toques—Color is Important.

Hats to suit every face, hats appropriate for every occasion and hats that are, above all, seasonable for the time of year during which they are to be worn, is the ideal that modistes have had in mind for many months, the object toward which they have been steadily working. And, writes a style authority, judging from the millinery that is presented for the mid-summer season, their ambitions have been realized.

Those who design and make clothes deserve a great deal more of public approbation than they ever receive. They are criticized time and again for forcing the sales of costly and unseasonable merchandise and for showing models much in advance of the season for the sake of obtaining new business and making the clothes which women already have appear a pace behind fashion.

The most fault-finding person in existence could not justly accuse milliners of not having done their very best this year to keep dress in its logical place in regard to the season. For the sunny months they have made an extensive showing of typical summer hats. They have made the wide-trimmed hat, that so becomingly shadows the face, rival the smaller hat to a degree not seen before.

Large Capelines Vie With Toques. So much publicity has the wide hat recently received that women might be led to believe that the small hat was about to pass from the realm of fashions. This is not so. Even if it were we would be no better off, for we still would be following one line in fashions without the variety that we should have, and the difficulty of finding a becoming hat would be as great as ever.

Hats prepared for the midsummer are of infinite variety, from large capelines to tiny toques. The tendency recently has been toward larger hats. It is true, but it would be futile to say that they are going to be universally adopted, because they are not becoming to every woman. It means a great deal to a woman to have a becoming hat. The whole world is likely to appear a little more pleasant to her, and it certainly has an excellent effect on her disposition.

In order to make it possible for each woman to have her friends say, is that the dimensions of hats in general have increased. They are either higher, broader, or both. Some of the real summery ones are of huge proportions. Among the small types are two new forms recently launched at Paris in extraordinarily high crowned effects after the 1830 style. These are shown in dark hunters green straw—and by the way, there is a strong tendency toward these dark greens in millinery.

One such model was trimmed with a huge rosette of straw placed at the side back, and another with tall upstanding quills made of eagle feathers. Ever so many smartly dressed women are affecting these curious tall-crowned hats.

Next after the size one is impressed by the lighter colors, especially in the nets, chiffons and organdies, which are so suitable for hot weather. Among the light colors are lovely Parma violet shades and soft citron hues.

Lovely models of organdie may be embroidered in many hues that are

No. 4—Blue Crepe de Chine With Pompon of Ostrich. No. 5—Model Showing Veil of Black Net Embroidered in Colored Cellophane. No. 6—Tailored Hat of Black Straw and Crepe de Chine.

In contrast to the color of the organdie, but blend beautifully with it. An example of this is seen in the embroidered hat.

Another charming model is developed in mauve organdie and trimmed with cherries in cerise and mauve, and a hat of blue georgette crepe of a soft shade with a crown of dyed straw lace.

One is in French blue taffeta, white organdie and blue tagal straw. The crown is of the straw, showing that the modiste is quite impartial in her use of materials, combining several in one model.

Among the lovely things sent to America is a hat developed in coral pink crepe de chine trimmed with a large scarf of metal embroidered in pink silk.

Some good-looking hats are in sailor shape and faced with very bright colored changeable taffetas—for instance, a sailor of black taffeta, the brim faced with changeable red taffeta, trimming the hat with folded bands of red and black.

Models in Silk and Straw. Following in the wake of the craze for certain types of tailored things, very smart tailored styles in hats have recently come into unusual prominence. These are made in both crepe de chine and straw. Occasionally taffeta facings in brilliant colors are noted, and especially desirable is changeable taffeta, which gives a marvelous color tone.

One of the most popular of the tailored models is a hat in shiny black straw trimmed with a braided band of bright green crepe de chine. This was brought out earlier in the season and its popularity has increased.

Veil-trimmed hats have in no wise lost their prestige, for the most extraordinary styles in veils are just now being launched by leading milliners. A number of harem styles are copied from the Syrian and Egyptian headresses.

An Egyptian type is in black net embroidered in colored cellophane.

Folds of tulle or lace, scarfs and scarf ends often are attached to one or both sides of a hat and looped gracefully. Such trimming is softening to the contour of the face and likely to prove most becoming.

You will see that we have quite as much choice in the matter of trimmings as we have in shape, size and coloring. A few of the unusual forms such as the straw rosette and eagle feathers have been especially noted. But for the midsummer the trimming that one sees in profusion is flowers. There is little novelty about them and it is true that they appear on the most commercial hats.

One of the smartest handbag models was of black fallie, very thin. It opened flat to reveal the white moiré lining and a compartment for bills and cards, one for a small change purse, one for a mirror and another for a powder puff—a great deal to be tucked away in such a small space.

No. 1—An Embroidered Organdie Model. No. 2—Hat Trimmed With Old-Fashioned Lace Bands. No. 3—Blue Taffeta Straw and White Organdie.

"You could not have a more becoming hat," we must have shapes, sizes and trimmings suitable for the fluffy coiffure, for simple, smooth hairdressing and for every type of face. And, above all, there must be hats of every color, for color is very important in making headgear becoming.

Then, they must not all be of fabric. The fabric hat is excellent, and at the moment is preferred to any other, but here again we must be careful to avoid monotony—and a pretty straw hat may be found much more beautifying than one made of silk or ribbon. We too often hear that "they are wearing" such and such a thing. For instance, "They are wearing fabric hats." But the woman who wants to be individual and be becomingly dressed will use her own judgment after having informed herself regarding the trend of fashion, and this summer she will take advantage of the great variety of things offered her.

Large Proportions and Novel Types. The thing that probably strikes the eye first in viewing the new millinery

STRONG ON TALK

This Land Too Full of Half-Baked Theorists.

What Good-Natured Americans Have to Endure in These Days is Surely "A Plenty."

Americans are probably the most fully advised people on earth. The whole land is full of emergency rostrums where people who have a passion for advising their brethren may repair and relieve their minds in detail.

No people are more talked to and talked at, and no people are more tolerant and good-natured about it.

Not only is the land full of native advisory talent, but advisers live here from other lands and insist upon explaining matters to us—giving us the low-down and the real McCoy on a variety of topics, many of them exceedingly dull.

The land is full of well-fed, impractical theorists who have thought it all out and are willing and anxious to tell about it, asserts Glenn M. Farley in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Some of the fluent speakers are men who have never done anything in all their long lives but write or talk. They never, by any chance, have got into the thick of things themselves; never been horned around and pushed and shoved and stepped on, or acquired calloused hands or practical experience in working for a living; never stood up to the East Wind of Hard Luck and Hard Work and Won Through in spite of discouragements.

Still they are perfectly willing to explain matters and tell how to correct our sad mistakes of judgment.

The land is full of instructors without appointment and guides without certificates.

Is it any wonder that we are so often on the wrong track? Is it not a miracle that we are on the road at all and making progress?

The land is full of critics, men anxious to point out the errors of poor, lost, wandering humanity; men keen to tear down and destroy the work of others and furnish nothing constructive to replace it; men full of theories, but short on practice.

It is a fine thing for a citizen to have a helpful theory, but a still finer thing for him to work it out.

It seems to come natural to a lot of people to explain matters. When a citizen feels moved to go out in the back yard and undertake to plant a garden some neighbor is quite apt to step over and lean on the fence and explain to him precisely how the garden should be put in.

What a splendid, grand glorious thing it would be if all the volunteer instructors and guides and exhorters would stop talking and go to work themselves!

As it is, a lot of the listeners are getting nervous. They are getting reasonably well fed up with instruction. When a man who has been through the mill raises his voice in counsel, he generally has something of value to say.

But when a party with a gas bag moves in and begins to release the gas he becomes a nuisance to everybody. He annoys people who are really working and accomplishing something, and often drops a monkey wrench or a screw driver into the machinery.

There are orators running around with a load of misinformation who would probably be all right if they had a bath and a haircut and consented to go to work.

Anyhow, it would be worth trying, and it would be a wonderful relief to the public.

There are entirely too many able-bodied men standing around instructing others and awaiting a formal introduction to hard work.

This country's business and industry would bounce like a rubber ball if we could contrive to induce every able-bodied man to turn his hand to some useful work and stop peddling the talk.

What we need is a moratorium on volunteer misinformation.

As it is the season for the talkfest is over, and the janitor will soon be putting out the lights.

Putting Out the Lights.

Iceland Spar.

One of the most interesting of nature's processes is that by which cracks in volcanic rocks are filled in with materials brought up in hot solutions from the bowels of the earth. It is by this means that "veins" and "lodes" of gold and silver are formed.

In the eastern part of Iceland there is a locality where such cracks in rocks have been filled with a pure carbonate of lime which forms clear and beautiful crystals. These crystals, called "iceland spar," have a peculiar property of "polarizing" light, which makes them valuable for use in connection with microscopes and other optical instruments.

Within the last few years deposits of iceland spar have been discovered in Sweetgrass county, Montana, and in the Warner range near Cedarville, Calif. Efforts are being made to develop them.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Disconcerting Enthusiasm.

The newcomer to the town was approached by some ladies and asked if he would not like to send his children to Sunday school. They were decidedly startled when he replied:

"Oh, yes, indeed, I am here on Sunday schools."—Harper's Magazine.

WAS FIRST CIVIL MARRIAGE

Union of Edward Winslow and Susanna White in 1621 Set a Precedent in New World.

May 12, 1621, the first English marriage in New England was performed. The principals were two of the Mayflower passengers. The bride was Susanna White and the groom was Edward Winslow.

Both contracting parties had been recently bereaved. Susanna came to Plymouth as the wife of William White. He was one of the Pilgrims who died the first winter.

A month after Susanna White was left a widow Edward Winslow lost his young wife, Elizabeth, whom he had married about two years before the great voyage. The marriage of the Widow White and the Widower Winslow occurred less than two months after White's death.

It was probably the first civil marriage in the New World, says the New York Herald. Governor Bradford was in favor of the civil marriage. It was thought, he wrote in his history, "most requisite to be performed by the magistrate, as being a civil thing, upon which many questions about inheritances do depend, with other things most proper to their cognizance, and most consonant to the scriptures, Ruth 4, and no where found in the gospel to be layed on the ministers as a part of their office."

The matter of civil marriages played a painful part in Winslow's life 15 years later, when, as governor of the colony, he went to England to plead Plymouth's cause. For preaching and for performing civil marriages he was kept in prison four months, he having stoutly maintained, against the archbishop of Canterbury, that he found nowhere in the Word of God that "marriage was tied to ministry."

Two children were born to the principals of his first marriage in the New World, and one of these Josiah Winslow, became almost as famous as his father, being elected governor of Plymouth colony a few years after his father's death.

Historic Order Revived.

The historic Order of the Sun, created as "an eternal institution" by Gen. Jose de San Martin during the aristocratic regime of early Peruvian independence, has been revived under supreme decree. Gen. Simon Bolivar, one of the liberators of Peru, abolished the order in 1825 on the ground that it "did not conform with the basis of the political constitution of the republic."

Membership in the order, says the decree just issued, may be granted to Peruvians, military and civilians, who have "rendered themselves worthy of distinction, and to foreigners who have made patent their interest in Peru." The President of the republic will be the grand master.

Several articles of the Order of the Sun are said to be identical to those of the Order of the Cincinnati in the United States.

Expert Smokers.

The feat of the London workman in keeping a pipe alight for two hours and five minutes, reminds a correspondent of the London Morning Post that these pipe-smoking competitions have long been held in Belgium. He says: "The prizes to be won are not inconsiderable, and I once took part in a competition in which the winner received 500 francs.

"All the competitors were given a certain quantity of tobacco, a long church-warden pipe, and a box of matches. Then at a given signal they all lit up and smoked away. I forgot the time the winner made his pipe last, but it was well over two hours. Mine, alas, went out in something over half an hour.

"The winner was a very old Flemish peasant of patriarchal appearance, and his victory was well earned, for he smoked in solemn silence the whole time, only diverting himself by copious drafts from his chopin of beer, which was frequently replenished during the course of the contest."

Point of a Star.

Most of us, if asked how many points a star should have, would say five, and cite the Stars and Stripes as proof; but the director of the United States mint has corrected this misapprehension in answering an inquiry on the subject. He calls attention to the fact that the stars on the great seal of the United States and on the seal of the President are five-pointed, but that the stars are six-pointed on the seal of the house of representatives; and further to the six-pointed stars on the obverse of the half and quarter-dollar coins and the five-pointed stars on the reverse. The reverse of these coins is a copy of the great seal with the clouds and stars omitted. So far as known, the six-pointed star comes from copying the colonial coins made after the manner of English heraldry, which sanctions that star. The stars on the flag are copied from the Washington coat-of-arms.

Clock Tells All Times.

A new German clock that records all kinds of things besides time aroused the interest of Consul Bredt at Prague to such an extent that he wrote the Commerce department all about it. He saw it at a fair and said it would tell the second of the minute, minute of the hour, hour of the day, day of the week, week of the month, month of the year, season of the year, position of the stars and the exact position of the earth in its orbit, all for the trifling cost of 5,000 Austrian crowns, or about $50 in real money.

Why Drones Are Numerous.

The great puzzle has been why did Nature create so many drones among bees, when but one ever served a definite purpose in a hive. Huber, famous bee student, has answered it by declaring that males must be numerous so that the queen in her bridal flight will have the best of chances to meet one. Were there but two or three to a hive they might miss the departure of their queen altogether, or else fail to find her on her flight. Her stay in her flight must be brief, for a sudden wind may blow her from her course or bear her to earth where, wet-winged and chilled, she would die or fall prey to a bird.

Definite Details.

"The girl at the next table to me must be away up in society. I heard her telling the girl with her that she had more prominent callers than she could attend to, and that her favored suitor drove his own car." "That's right; I know her. I'm one of her callers when I want a number, and her favored suitor stops his car when I signal the conductor."

Oh, Wily Man!

"I don't know whether I like these photos or not," said the young woman; "they seem rather indistinct." "But you must remember, madam, that your face is not at all plain."

PUT GREAT FAITH IN CHARMS

Belief is Part of Arabian Life, and Even Europeans Come to Take Them Seriously.

"Fire in your eye," says the Arab when he suspects you of putting the evil eye on him, and he mechanically spreads the five fingers of his hand.

"Fire in your eye" is a little engraved silver band. It is flat and about two inches long and looks much like a conventional lotus or acanthus leaf, such as you see in the design of temple capitals at Karnak. It was sold to me by a person I had only read about before in fairy tales—a hooded croone. If you have on you, within reach of your fingers, this little silver band, you need not seriously fear the evil eye. You mechanically touch the dangling charm and all immediate danger is averted.

I met my hooded croone in an oasis, and, believe me or not, as you please, she was carrying a bundle of faggots on her shoulders. I have never seen anyone look more like a witch.

She offered me a quantity of silver, jingling things, some bangles which I wish I had bought. The unofficial king of Algeria was with me at the time, and he picked out "Fire in your eye." That, of course, was enough, and after a period devoted to business pure and simple, I became the possessor of this rather uncanny little gawdaw.

We have in England a cold, fish-minded way of affecting to laugh at what we are pleased to call local superstition. Let me tell you that this point of view will not work in Africa. What is obviously a childish hallucination in Hampstead or Newcastle is sober reality under this immense blue sky. You can disbelieve a lot of truths you do not understand as you strap-bag homeward, but you will learn to believe everything in Africa.

And by the measure of your capacity for belief will your mental outlook be judged. In Algeria, especially in the south on the skirts of the desert, and in Tunisia, charms of all sorts abound. A chameleon's skull is the most valuable specific against the manifold evil spirits which roam the air searching for easy game, and in most villages you will see a mule's skull clamped to a housepost or on a palm tree. Who are we of the dark frozen north to laugh at such things, who know nothing of them? If they do nothing more (and this is pure supposition) they at all events bring comfort to those who believe in them. Is that nothing?—John Prieau in London Daily Mail.

Gun Has Sixty-Mile Range.

In the course of experiments in the last two years in an effort to produce a cannon that would fire a shell about sixty miles M. Delamare-Maze built a gun that upsets all preconceived ideas about artillery, being open in the rear as well as at the muzzle; the tube and the breech part are separate and remain apart even at the moment of firing.

The explosion chamber is narrowed at its forward end, and its external diameter is slightly less than that of the bore of the barrel of the gun, so that when pushed together they escape touching by only a few millimeters. When the gases of explosion expand they exert their forces upon the projectile and are turned back by it to escape through the space, which separates the two parts.

This backward rush produces a force acting upon the projectile.

Gold and Coal.

In describing the Cambria coal field of Wyoming, an expert mentions the interesting fact that gold and silver are present in small quantities in the coal. From the occurrence of iron pyrite, which is distributed throughout the coal seam, it is suspected that this mineral carries the precious metals. The coke made from the coal is used in smelting works, and averages from one to two pennyweight of gold per ton, which is sufficient to compensate for a high ash content.

There has been a similar occurrence in South Africa. The coal occurred in small seams running through the quartzite ore, and in places was quite rich in gold, the ash being colored a bright purple by the finely divided particles of metal.

Yacht Scurvy Fifty Years Ago.

In the course of some historical articles on the performance of early yachts, the Yachting World and Marine Motor Journal gives some interesting details regarding the famous schooner Alarm, of England, built in 1830 at Lymington, England, as a 194-ton cutter, lengthened and enlarged to 248 tons and converted to schooner rig in 1852. In a race of 52 miles against the Swedish schooner Sverige, of 280 tons, the Alarm won by two minutes, at an average speed of 12 knots. That would be good going in these days for a schooner of that size.

Catalonia in History.

Catalonia, under the name of Hispania Tarraconensis, constituted a part of Roman Spain. It was invaded and subdued by the Alans, and, after them, by the Goths, who gave the country the name of Gothalandia, changed in the course of time to Catalonia. In the eighth century the Arabs gained possession of the southern part. When Charlemagne, in 788, subjugated Spain as far as the Ebro river, Catalonia formed the central portion of the Spanish mark, governed by Frankish counts who had Barcelona as their residence. They soon made themselves independent of France. In 1151 Earl Ramon Berenguer, by his marriage with the Princess Petronilla (1137), united Catalonia with Aragon, to the future greatness of which Catalonia contributed in a very great measure by reason of its wealth and the influence wielded by the citizens of Barcelona, its capital, in the western Mediterranean.

Wise Advice for Employees.

Keep, if possible, your work done far enough ahead so that you can afford to take a few days off, if because of a slight illness; you need the rest that will prevent its becoming a serious one. Gain among your fellows and with your employer a reputation for steadiness and competence that will insure your job during a lull in business which necessitates the laying off of part of the force. Remember that while it is important to save money it is equally important to save energy and capacity, both of which have a money value. Dissipation, careless living, inattention to your work, all cut down your factor of safety, and make it more difficult for you to weather a storm.—John Blake, in Chicago Daily News.

Official Summary Shows Condition In Europe Rather Bad, While Southern Hemisphere Prospects Are Good.

Preliminary reports to the United States Department of Agriculture from winter-wheat growing countries show harvests are either nearing completion or about to take place, point to deficiency in the acreage of winter wheat, as compared with the preceding season. Spring wheat, which constitutes approximately one-fourth of the world's supply has, as yet, to pass through its critical stages of development, and with a continuance of the present climatic conditions these are not very bright. Estimates of the 1921 production of wheat in Belgium are placed at 7,679,000 bushels, or 74.6 per cent of the 1920 production; in Bulgaria 48,905,000 bushels, or 123.2 per cent of last year; in Greece 13,962,000 bushels, or 114.5 per cent of last year; in Algeria 33,142,000 bushels, or 287.2 per cent of last year, and in Tunis 11,758,000 bushels, or 225 per cent of the production in 1920. Recent unofficial reports state that the coming wheat crop in Italy will approximate about 174,000,000 bushels, compared with 141,337,000 in 1920, while commercial estimates place Canada's production for the present season at approximately 300,000,000 bushels, compared with 263,189,000 bushels last year.

The principal feature of the current agricultural year in the Northern Hemisphere have been an unusually mild and dry winter, followed by a rather heavy drought which has become especially severe in Europe and India. The prolongation of this drought will probably have a serious effect on spring sown crops, which in some countries are already showing signs of being stunted.

On the first of this month in eastern Canada the crops were suffering greatly from prolonged drought, but conditions were reported as generally favorable over the larger part of the western provinces, especially in Saskatchewan, in spite of some rumors to the contrary.

Generally speaking, from practically the whole of Europe have come complaints of drought. In France the rainfall during the first half of the crop season was the lowest for many years, and the present month promises to establish a record for dryness. Conditions are said to be the worst in many seasons. The prolongation of the drought gives cause for keen uneasiness. Beets, spring cereals and meadows have suffered most. Autumn wheat still presents a good appearance. Winter oats will give a good yield, but the condition of spring oats and wheat leaves much to be desired.

Recent reports indicate that in the United Kingdom the drought continues to prevail with unabated severity. The deep-rooted winter wheat has stood the dry conditions remarkably well, and though the straw is short, the yield of grain promises to be satisfactory. Spring sown cereals have suffered more or less from dryness, and the yield will be somewhat below the average. On the average, both barley and oats are expected to give poor yields in all parts of the country. In Denmark the agricultural prospects are nearly as discouraging as those of France. The harvest has commenced earlier than usual and the rye crop is almost a failure on the sandy lands. Other parts of the country are not so badly affected, but the crops generally are expected to be below the average. Similar climatic conditions are also affecting the harvest prospects of Belgium and Holland. The production of rye and barley in Belgium is estimated as follows: Rye 19,172,000 bushels, or 105.5 per cent of the 1920 production; barley 4,409,000 bushels, or 101.6 per cent of the 1920 production.

The drought has spread over a good part of Germany, but the cereal crops are too forward to suffer and the outlook, so far, is for a good harvest. However, recent cool weather has dispelled all hopes of an early harvest, and supplies of old crop grain will have to last longer than was anticipated.

According to unofficial sources the disastrous failure of the Russian crops is now generally known. The famine area embraces the whole Volga region, the Kuban district, the rich province of Ekaterinoslav, and six central provinces. The yield of crops will only be a third of the amount expected.

In Roumania crop prospects are generally well maintained except in the droughty districts, although later reports state that in consequence of further rains the outlook of spring cereals in these districts is becoming favorable.

In Hungary crop prospects are considered satisfactory and an increased production is expected. In Austria the harvest is progressing everywhere, but on account of the drought the weather is not all that could be desired.

In Jugo-Slavia the crop prospects are not as satisfactory owing to adverse weather conditions. Heavy rains and hailstorms have been experienced and these have beaten down the cereals in the Bosnia and Timok districts. Owing to the drought and the adverse weather mentioned above the wheat crop will be poor, but the corn crop is expected to be a little more promising.

In Italy seasonable weather conditions are prevailing. So far, crop reports are generally favorable. Spring crops, such as corn, haricot beans, hemp, etc., are ripening in satisfactory condition.

From Spain reports indicate satisfactory conditions with the prospects of a larger wheat crop than last year.

From India disquieting reports of the failure of the monsoon have come to hand and moisture is generally urgently needed. Grave anxiety prevails as to the weakness of the monsoon in Western India and fears are expressed of famine in many parts of the dependency.

In North Africa harvesting is practically finished and the yields appear, on the whole, to be somewhat better than last year. From Egypt recent reports indicate favorable climatic conditions. The area sown to cotton for 1921 is estimated at 1,335,000 acres. This is considerably less than in 1920, when the area was approximately 1,897,000 acres, and less than the average of the previous 10 normal years, which was 1,753,000 acres. The planting of the 1921 crop was, however, restricted by law, and a proper comparison is with 1915 and 1918, when a similar limitation was enforced, and the areas were 1,231,000 and 1,366,000 respectively.

In the southern hemisphere in both Argentina and Australia, weather conditions have been reported favorable and hopes, based on the present appearance of the fields, are for good yields from the coming harvest.

Robinson Waives Examination.
Tuesday at Albany when arraigned for a hearing Emory P. Robinson, shall shocked war veteran, and William Gage, a negro accused of stealing a touring car owned by George T. Stearns in Albany, Friday, July 29, waived examination for the grand jury on a charge of grand larceny. The men were arrested on North Front street, this city, Friday evening by Officer James Martin who suspected that they had stolen the touring car by which they stood. They were locked up and investigation proved the officer was correct and the Albany police were notified and the two thieves taken back to Albany. Robinson had been in the state hospital at Poughkeepsie for nine months and had made his escape on Tuesday of last week. After being admitted to bail in police court, Albany, he was returned to the state hospital at Poughkeepsie. Gage was committed to jail.

TWELFTH WARD WANTS JENKINS

Democrats Met Monday Evening In That Ward And Voted To Recommend Former County Judge For Mayor—Martin For Alderman And George Burgerin For Supervisor.

Former County Judge James Jenkins is the choice of the Democrats of the Twelfth ward for the Democratic nomination of mayor this fall, and at a meeting of the Democrats of that ward Monday evening they voted unanimously to recommend his name for that office at the meeting to be held at the city hall this evening.

Alderman William B. Martin will again be the Democratic nominee for the office of alderman of that ward, and a committee was appointed to wait on George Burgerin and urge him to accept the nomination of supervisor in that ward.

In the Eighth ward the Democrats will recommend Hugh McTague for supervisor and Alderman Peter A. Kullmann to succeed himself as alderman.

The city committee of the Democrats met tonight at the city hall at 8 o'clock to arrange a ticket for the fall election, and it is expected that a complete ticket, with the probable exception of mayor will be named.

City Judge Harry E. Schirick will again be the Democratic candidate for city judge as he has refused to consider the nomination for mayor.

Eggs and Civilization.

The world has grown better since the discovery of the egg and the growth of civilization has kept pace with the growth of the egg-eating habit—two contemporaneous facts, though their exact correlation may not be capable of demonstration. But from the facts of the case we may be warranted in concluding that a still greater consumption of hens' eggs would not hinder the coming of a more civilized world. Why should not the facts be correlated when the egg contains the vital principle of growth of the body and also a substance that nourishes the brain—an article of food that is responsible for both body growth and mental quickening? Why should we not eat more eggs and look for a higher civilization?—James Dryden.

E ALDERMANIC STRINGS PULLED

the Proper Petition Came Up Fourth Time Tuesday the Aldermen Waxed Warm and Hurling Insinuations—Other Matters at Council Session.

Who can be guilty of trying to use aldermen of Kingston as zoats, suggested by Alderman Macholdt in Ninth ward, and who is pulling strings attached to aldermen robes, as suggested by Alderman Roosa of the Second ward and Alderman Martin of the Twelfth ward—although each accused the other of knowing—are questions that were at the session of the common council held Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the city hall. The aldermen tactfully removed the gag they had placed on the mouths of the city's residents, and exercised right of public speech themselves to such an extent that an hour was lost in hurling insinuations about council chambers.

Spinnewebber's Petition.
The petition of Frederick J. Spinnewebber of Port Ewen, who is now running a line of busses from that place to the Skillypot ferry landing, asking permission to extend his line to this side of the Rondout creek, stopping at the Strand and Broadway terminals, was read and referred to the motor bus committee for a public hearing to be held later.

Myers Granted Permission.
Henry Myers of Tillson, who operates the Tillson-Kingston bus line, petitioned the council for the privilege of extending his route to take the Strand bus terminal. Alderman Myers, who is no relation to Busman Myers, moved that the petition be granted, which was unanimously adopted.

Proper's Fourth Attempt.
Charles Proper of Lawrenceville, who wants to operate a bus line from Lawrenceville-Rosendale to Kingston through his attorney, Frank W. Woods, submitted his fourth petition to the council asking the consent that body to operate the bus line. Alderman Martin said that he did not believe it was necessary to hold further public hearings in the matter as this was the fourth time it had been thoroughly threshed out, and he offered a resolution that the petition be granted.

Alderman Martin said that it was down at the last hearing that four hundred residents had signed a petition asking that permission be granted, and it was up to the council to consider the rights of others in the matter.

The Martin resolution was seconded by Alderman Macholdt.

Roosa Moved To Reject It.
Alderman Roosa said "I move we reject the petition on the grounds that it has been rejected before."

Alderman Myers seconded the Roosa resolution.

"Can't Do It" Said Dittus.
"I would like to read you a section of the city charter," said President Dittus, and he read that section that required a public hearing to be held in all motor bus petitions before the council could take action.

"Then I move that the public hearing be held later," said Alderman Roosa, and Alderman Myers seconded it by moving that it go over to the September meeting.

"I make a further amendment," said Alderman Martin, "that the public hearing be held a week from this evening."

"There's a Reason" Said Roosa.
Alderman Roosa said that there was a reason for Alderman Martin wanting the petition granted.

"At the first meeting when Proper filed his first petition Alderman Martin voted in favor of rejecting it," said Alderman Myers.

Alderman Martin retorted that he had changed his mind after he had found that four hundred residents had wanted the petition granted, and he called for a vote on his resolution to hold the public hearing next Tuesday evening which was lost by a vote of 7 to 5, and the Roosa resolution that the public hearing be held the night of the regular monthly session in September was adopted.

"Aldermen Are Playing Goat."
"I want to call attention to the fact that some are playing zoats," said Alderman Macholdt. "For every time this Proper petition comes up you can see the aldermen going around and whispering to one another that they would vote 'no' and you vote 'yes' for if I vote so and so it will hurt me in my ward."

I say what's the use of cutting a man's throat behind his back."

Wants Written Report.
Alderman Martin said that he would serve notice on the motor bus committee that the council expected a written report as to why they rejected the petition.

"You'll get it," remarked Alderman Roosa, a member of that committee, sotto voce and he smiled as he said it.

Alderman Roosa said that it looks as though the Proper petition would become a monthly affair, and he did not think that should be so.

Alderman Schick said that this was a country where every citizen should receive equal rights, and they should receive equality whether they were residents of the city or not.

"Strings Being Pulled."
Alderman Martin said it looked as though strings were being pulled in the matter.

"As a member of the bus committee," retorted Alderman Roosa, "I want to say that no strings are being pulled there, and if any strings are being pulled Mr. Martin knows about that."

A Peep Behind The Scenes.
Although it was not stated by the aldermen it is a well known fact that a large number of the Jewish residents of the city have been interviewing various aldermen asking them to grant the Proper petition. Mr. Proper is also a Jew, and that is undoubtedly the "strings" that the aldermen were referring to.

Select Polling Places Early.
Chairman Purvis of the election committee called attention to the fact that the fall election was drawing near, and urged each alderman to file as early as possible the polling places that will be used. He said that under the state law it required that school houses and public buildings be used for polling places where available, and it has been ascertained that no school houses in Kingston were available for that purpose.

Wants City To Vote On It.
Alderman Macholdt introduced a lengthy resolution on the subject of whether the mayor and corporation counsel draw up a list of questions to submit to the people at the fall election giving them an opportunity to vote on the question of whether the elimination of the Broadway crossing of the West Shore railroad was wanted at this time considering the expense.

Mayor Canfield said that all concerned in the elimination of the crossing were working in the matter to adjust it in a way that would prove satisfactory to all. It was in the courts now and he said that it could not be voted out of the hands of the court.

After considerable discussion between the mayor, Alderman Macholdt and Alderman Martin, Alderman Schick offered an amendment that the resolution be tabled which was adopted by a vote of 8 to 3.

Work For Street Department.
The following resolutions, which were referred to the board of public works were introduced:

By Alderman Kullmann that West Pierpont street be oiled and top-dressed.

By Alderman Kullmann that crossing at Russell street and West Pierpont street be repaired making it safe for mothers to cross with their baby carriages.

By Alderman Kullmann that the chief of police notify all property owners to relay sidewalks where necessary which was referred to the police board.

By Alderman Kirchner that catch basin on Hunter street be repaired.

By Alderman Lemister that Hanratty street be placed in condition.

By Alderman Lemister that Jarrold street sewer be cleared.

"BLACK SOX" FATE UP TO JUDGE LANDIS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Chicago, Aug. 3.—The baseball future of a quarter of a million dollars' worth of players rests today in the hands of Judge K. M. Landis.

A jury in superior court here has said that the "Black Sox" committed no crime in connection with the alleged conspiracy to "throw" the 1919 world's series to Cincinnati. Players and gamblers accused in the scandal that turned the baseball world topsy-turvy a year ago have been exonerated. The law has no further terrors for them.

Eddie Cicotte, Joe Jackson, Claude Williams, "Buck" Weaver, "Happy" Felsch, "Chick" Gandil and "Swede" Risberg, however, still must face the bony, pointing finger and the piercing eye of Judge Landis, the big sheik of the baseball tribe. The arbiter of all disputes that arise in the national game must say whether they shall again be permitted to participate in organized baseball.

The verdict of the jury that ended the famous scandal trial came just before midnight. The jurors had deliberated for four hours and had taken only one ballot, it was announced. The clerk of the court read one by one the names of the defendants and the decision of the jury that they were innocent. Besides the ball players, David Ziser of Des Moines, Iowa, and Carl Zork of St. Louis, alleged gamblers and "fixers" of the series, were exonerated.

Demonstrations of joy followed the verdict. The ball players pounded each other on the back and fought to shake hands with the jurors. A crowd of 500 men that packed the court room stamped and cheered despite the warning of Judge Hugo M. Friend that no demonstration would be permitted.

Early today Judge Landis and other baseball officials maintained silence as to what their attitude would be. Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, and Ban Johnson, president of the American League, could not be reached and efforts to get into touch with Judge Landis were unavailing. It was thought probable that Judge Landis would withhold any ruling for a few days at least but no inkling of his intentions has come from the baseball arbiter.

It is certain that the final action in the cases of players must come from Judge Landis. It will be his province to say whether or not they shall participate again in organized baseball.

If Judge Landis reinstates any or all of the players, their status under baseball law must be determined. When the charges were brought against them all of the players were handed their unconditional discharge by Comiskey and told that they could never play with the White Sox again. Whether the White Sox will have prior claim on the players should they be reinstated or whether they will be free agents whom any manager may deal with is a point of baseball law that Judge Landis also will be called upon to decide.

Should the players be exonerated by Judge Landis and held to be free agents it is expected that bidding among the managers for their services will not be entirely desisted. Such players as Weaver, Williams, Risberg, Jackson and Felsch would look mighty sweet in the lineup of half a dozen clubs in both the major leagues.

"Buck" Weaver so far is the only player to announce that he will fight to get back in organized baseball. Through his attorney, Weaver will present a petition signed by thousands of fans asking that he be reinstated with the White Sox. "Buck" confidently expects to be working under "Kid" Gleason again in a few days.

Eddie Cicotte, who admits 37 years and is probably about to the end of his baseball career, announced that he would return to his Detroit home but did not say what his plans were.

Gandil declared he expected to get hold of some good club and manage it, indicating that he did not expect to play again in the big leagues. Williams said he would play semi-professional ball and Joe Jackson asserted he was through with organized baseball. He said he would remain in Chicago, operate his billiard hall, play a little "sand lot" ball and intimate that he had received an offer or two to shine before the footlights.

Felsch and Risberg expressed their joy at the outcome of the trial but did not state what their plans of the future were.

Verdict of the jury it is believed today resulted chiefly from a point in Judge Friend's instructions. Judge Friend instructed the jury that in cases where conspiracy to defraud the public and the baseball owners is charged, it is up to the state to prove that acts were done by the players with specific intent to defraud.

Indictment of the players and alleged gamblers followed an investigation that began immediately after the 1919 world's series when rumors that the games had not been decided "on the level" became current. The climax of the probe came in September 1920, when a grand jury was called and after a few days, indictments returned.

Jackson, Cicotte and Williams made confessions before the grand jury but later repudiated these confessions. "Bill" Burns, a former major league pitcher, and William Maharg, a sporting character of Philadelphia, also confessed, turned state's evidence and were granted immunity.

The original indictments accused Abe Attell, former featherweight boxing champion, Hal Chase, once the prince of major league first basemen and Fred McMullen, utility infielder of the White Sox. Attell and Chase defeated extradition proceedings in New York and California and McMullen never was apprehended.

Porto Rican Agriculture.
From Porto Rico there comes into the United States each year a large contribution to the sugar, fruit, vanilla and tobacco supply. Coffee is extensively grown, but little of it reaches the states. The report for 1920 of the Porto Rico Agricultural Experiment Station under the supervision of the United States Department of Agriculture at Mayaguez indicates agricultural improvements which should benefit owners, laborers, and ultimately, the consumers in this country who pay higher prices when any commodity is produced by wasteful or costly methods.

The prosperity of the island for five centuries has been dependent on agriculture. As there is no coal or water power, Porto Rico will never become a manufacturing country. In climate and beauty of surroundings, the island is ideal. Living conditions are constantly being improved, although there are too many peasants, or laborers, who do not command a living wage under present methods.

It is difficult to get Porto Rican planters to grow rice and other crops in rotation with cane in order to benefit the soil. Because of recent high prices for sugar the lands have been kept in cane too long. Specialists in the experiment station have warned planters to prepare for a fall in sugar prices. Rice cultivation is unpopular because special machinery must be installed. Legumes, such as the velvet bean and sunn hemp, give promise as rotation crops with cane. The tobacco industry is thriving, and capable of great expansion with less attention than other agricultural projects.

A better rounded system of agriculture, including the production of food and work animals and forage cover crops with which to maintain them, is strongly recommended in the report. If forage crops for hogs were grown to a greater extent it would not be necessary to import into Porto Rico pork and lard to the value of $3,500,000, as was the case last year. Neither pigs nor poultry supply the local food demand, or even utilize the kitchen waste.

Owing to the nature of the country, oxen must continue to do certain field work, so that cattle breeding is highly important for work animals as well as for dairy purposes. Tick-eradication work is helping to eliminate the greatest drawback to the cattle industry.

Pineapples, grape fruit and oranges are the main fruit products of Porto Rico. Surplus pineapples may be locally canned; some grape fruit juice is bottled; but owing to a lack of shipping facilities, there is an immense annual loss of citrus fruit. Investigations are being carried on which are designed to save the food and money waste due to decay of fruits in storage and transit. Data on the cost of production and handling is being gathered.

Experiment station specialists believe that by their constant dissemination of agricultural information, by the introduction of foods other than those native to the island, such as the common temperate-zone vegetables, and by scientific investigations aimed at the correction of adverse agricultural conditions, general standards of life and production in Porto Rico can be raised.

Cause of Earth's Fragrance.
The real cause of the peculiar fragrance of the earth, which is noticeable especially in the spring and after rains, has been found by recent experimenters. It was formerly explained as a result of certain chemical decompositions, but has now been discovered to be the emanation of thread bacteria, of which two species are particularly odorous. Not only do the bacteria isolated from the soil have the earth fragrance, but they retain it when cultivated on very varied substances, even on such inorganic materials as pea soup, milk, glycerine and starch paste.

Halide Edith Hanoun, former secretary of public education in the Turkish Nationalist government and the leader of the feminist movement in Turkey, is being mentioned in cable dispatches as being likely to be appointed the first woman ambassador to the United States. She is now the manager-in-chief of the Turkish Red Crescent (similar to our Red Cross) and is organizing a Turkish woman battalion to aid Mustafa Kemal Pasha's army to fight the Greeks. The photo shows Halide Hanoun going out for a ride, after a day's hard work. Note that she is riding astride. Quite at variance with the popular conception of the Turkish woman.

SEPARATE-ITEM VETO.

It has been predicted that for some time to come this country will be slow to consent to new constitutional amendments, and undoubtedly there is need of conservatism in a period when half-baked reformers are demanding new amendments pretty nearly every Tuesday and Friday. But Senator Kenyon's proposed amendment giving the President power to veto single items in appropriation bills deserves serious consideration as furnishing an effective check upon a large irresponsible element in Congress. Now the President can not winnow the chaff from the wheat, according to his judgment, but must approve or disapprove a bill in its entirety. Therefore, in order not to defeat absolutely necessary legislation, he is often obliged to endorse many items calling for unjustifiable expenditures.

This is a standing temptation to Congress to indulge in extravagance, loading down appropriation bills with unsound or questionable measures, totalling millions, thus forcing the President to become a party to them. The Kenyon proposition would put a curb upon this and place the responsibility where it belongs. If the President could kill separate items in appropriation bills, according to his judgment or under expert advice, as is now done by the Governor of New York, for example, the taxpayers might be saved millions of dollars and Congress be made a more responsible body.

DEFEATED BY BEER?

A new theory to explain the failure of German militarism has been announced. In a recent public address President Heinisch of Austria declared that "we would have won the war if the people in both Germany and Austria could have been persuaded to practice total alcoholic abstinence." If that is true, even the most convincing prohibitionist can honestly rejoice that the German and Austrian soldiers continued their beer drinking to the end of the war. The complexities of this hypothetical question would be considerably reduced if the Central Powers had been faced by an alliance of prohibition nations, but, as we all know, the French, English, and Italian soldiers regularly consumed their wine or ale rations, and even America played its part to the end of the struggle many months before it went on the water wagon.

Only Russia went "dry" during the fight, and Russia's collapse, military, moral and economic, dates from about the time, or not long after, vodka was outlawed. No doubt the Russian collapse would have come in any case, but President Heinisch overlooks some very inconvenient facts. It would have been much safer merely to advise prohibition as a means of assisting the economic revival of Germany and Austria. It must be obvious to every intelligent mind that prohibition or the lack thereof was but one of a thousand factors concerned in the winning or losing of the World War.

Careful examination of the detailed reports of income tax payments in 1912—a year when all classes of corporations paid large dividends—shows that dividends contributed only 10.34 per cent of the total payments from personal income and that interest from other investments contributed but 6.63 per cent, while the payments from wages and salaries contributed 77.04 per cent of the whole revenue from individuals. "Here," remarks a commenting inquirer, "is a graphic demonstration of the weight which the income tax bears upon the 'rumpled income' as compared with the 'smoothed income.' The ratio of collections was virtually three to one, in the favor of the wage earner and the salaried class." In other words, the Government derives its chief support from the wage earner and the salaried class. The interests of these classes, therefore, should have precedence in tax and tariff revision, rather than the interests of the corporations which usually get what they want by bringing pressure to bear on Congress.

Conservative Americans who are distressed by the growing practice of smoking cigarettes among women may find cause for congratulation in the reports from England, where, it is said, the women of the aristocracy have stopped smoking because "the women of the middle class have made it 'too common.' If the future is to be judged by the past, society in America is likely to do the same thing for the same reason. In that case there will soon be only a few women smokers left and these will indulge their real appetite for the 'weed' in private.

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Dept. of this paper. Look for answers in this column.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. Can horses and mules open their mouths after closing their teeth on an object? As in the case of mules seen to catch a chicken by the head and swing it until the head would come off, apparently unable to let go.
2. Kindly explain the meaning of dog days. Is the water poisonous to bathe in during those days?
3. Kindly advise what to feed a tame crow on; is it harmful to give bones?

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. What color is the true polecat?

The true polecat representative in America is a ferret, called black-footed polecat. It lives on open plains, preys on prairie dogs, is a fluffy or whitish color, with black feet, black at the end of the tail, and has a conspicuous black stripe across the face, extending beyond the eyes.

2. Will ring-neck pheasants mate our native pheasants?

We have no native American pheasant. Several varieties of this bird have been introduced from Asia. The ring-neck pheasant will mate in Europe with the so-called "common" pheasant, itself an introduced bird, but so long naturalized as to seem native to parts of Europe and England.

3. How long will a plant live?

This depends on the type and species of plant. Annuals, like grain and many garden plants, flower and mature seed in one growing season, then die. Biennials grow a stem the first year, flower and bear the second, then die. Perennials live several or many years, bearing each year. These flourish so long as their root hairs are able to absorb moisture and nourishment which passes greater and greater distances, as the plant grows larger, to reach the new shoots. When this distance becomes too great less nourishment reaches the shoots, fewer leaves are formed, less chemistry is performed by leaves and the plant will weaken and die.

ON-A-JOB, OFF-A-JOB JIM

Being a Mory
 Of how Jim got on a job and why he got off it again.

Jim began his job as waiter wondering if he could ever get used to the odor of garlic and fried potatoes, the thick yellow lights, the general air of filth and shiftness of the underground cafe. Nor did he take any more readily to Jose Boudre, owner and bully, who in spite of the cafe's lacking air of prosperity, provided his family with every luxury.

Jim admitted that if others were able to endure the obnoxious Boudre, he could stand him for two days. Three meals a day would mean a few dollars of money, and Jim felt a need of the money. Already the pavement rubbed uncomfortably close to the sole of his foot. Boudre refused all morning over Jim's impudence. He did not set the table correctly. He did not serve the patrons quickly enough. Jim listened patiently and plodded on, determined not to lose his patience. At the close of the day he ate his well-earned supper and hastened off to treat himself to the movies with a quarter tip he had received.

The next morning Boudre seemed more irritable; the place offensive. During the rush of the noon hour he was ordered to report at the desk where Boudre, in company with a ruddy looking woman, accosted him. "Is this the man?" as Jim approached.

"Yes," asserted his companion. "The very one!"

"Well!" Boudre scowled blackly. "So you come here to steal, eh?"

"What do you mean?" snapped Jim.

"This woman dropped a pocket-book as she left the room. She turned just in time to see you picking it up."

"That's ridiculous. I haven't seen your pocket-book."

"Don't contradict. Hand it over to her."

"Why should she say 'I took it when—'?" The cashier nudged him and winked. "Everything goes to him who waits," she remarked in an undertone.

"I didn't see, touch, or know anything about the pocket-book. That's all I can say." Turning on his heel, Jim returned to his customer, who was waiting impatiently to be served.

"Must I wait all day? Give me the menu."

"You don't need a menu. Look on the table cloth, and you'll see what's being served," growled Jim. He was angry clean through. The idea of Boudre's accusing him of theft. He wanted to chuck the job on the spot and yet— Suddenly he laughed, realizing an advantage in this. It gave a fellow a chance to tell the guy who bossed him exactly what he was going to do that minute.

Approaching the desk, he glanced at the yellow-haired cashier who seemed anxious to convey some message to him without Boudre's knowledge. He caught the idea at once. Boudre had the pocketbook himself, in his own hip-pocket.

Jim winked comprehensively, sidled up to the conversing cashier, and extracted the case from his pocket. Then he cautiously retreated and returned in triumph.

"Your pardon," he interrupted the pair, "one of our kitchen men found this pocketbook and begs me to return it with his compliments."

Boudre changed in demeanor. The woman clutched her treasure, and Jim fled, Revenge was his.

A ROMANTIC LEGEND.

Heard of the Three Fabled in Broadway.

There are a number of old residents left in the lower portion of Kingston who remember the old spring that was located on Broadway, near where Park's garage stands. This spring furnished the residents about the locality with fresh, sparkling water. It was called the Indian Spring, and to judge by the name from the story that many years before, when Roundout was but a wilderness, a beautiful Indian maiden whose name for a certain young warrior of the tribe, she believed to be married, jumped into the depths of the spring and was drowned. Her spirit seems to have hovered about the place for people of the past generation who told the old story a visit daily sometimes for water

ALL ITALY MOURNS CARUSO

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Naples, Aug. 3.—All Italy today mourned for Enrico Caruso. Arrangements are being made for a funeral of international proportions. All the stores in Naples are closed. Crowds, bareheaded and reverent passed before the Vesuvius Hotel where the great singer died yesterday morning.

The body will lie in state on the stage of the San Carlos Theater before interment.

The death room in the Vesuvius Hotel was filled with floral tributes. Orders for flowers came from all parts of the world.

Caruso's will is said to dispose of $50,000,000 lire.

It is learned that Caruso went upon a pilgrimage to the shrine of Madonna at Pompeii where he donated 2,000 lire as a thanksgiving offering for his recovery from illness. About the same time King Victor Emmanuel sent an aide de camp to Caruso's villa to express his best wishes over the apparent recovery from illness.

It was not until after Caruso's death that the specialists who had been attending him announced that kidney disease was really the cause of death. The singer was in great pain during his last hours of life, but bore himself stoically. His sufferings were so intense that his wife and brother could not bear to remain in the sick chamber and left it at frequent intervals to compose themselves.

Signor de Luca, a close friend of Caruso, who had spent nearly the whole of Monday night at the bedside, said he had never seen such mortal agony as the singer endured.

Intimates of Caruso said that up to a week before his death the singer was most optimistic over his recovery although at times he seemed to brood and it is now believed that he felt a presentiment of serious illness which he did not reveal even to members of his family.

Caruso was not a perfect medical patient. His doctor had put him upon a diet, but the singer continually disregarded it and ate heavy dishes that were forbidden. Caruso was always a hearty eater and chafed under the restraint which the physicians had imposed upon him.

Caruso was fond of company and liked to give "parties." At one party given to a number of his friends at Capri, he made a speech in which he said that he was sure he would get well, and that he hoped to sing again next winter in his old time form.

When Caruso came to Naples, he was suffering great pain, but he bore it stoically, hoping that it would disappear after a short course of treatment by specialists. He confided to his friend Archibon that he was feeling bad but hoped it was nothing serious.

Admirers of the singer recalled an incident today which has taken on significance since his death. On a recent church feast day Caruso volunteered to sing for his friends at his Sorrento villa. The last song he selected was called "The Swan Song." Caruso did not complain, but it is believed that he overtaxed his strength on this occasion. This was the only time that he had sung since his return from the United States in the spring.

About ten days ago Caruso's close friend Archibon advised him to go to bed for a rest, saying he was not looking well. Caruso laughed and refused. Afterwards, however, he consented to the calling of Dr. Bastielli, the famous Italian specialist from Rome. At that time Caruso was at Sorrento. After making a careful examination the specialist advised Caruso to go to Rome for an operation. The operation was to have taken place yesterday. The trip to Rome was started, but on the way Caruso became so bad that it was decided to stop off at Naples. Dr. Bastielli took his patient to the Vesuvius Hotel and other specialists were called in.

After death the body was embalmed and confined in the hotel room where death had occurred. The apartment had been converted into a mortuary chapel. The body rested in the bed in the middle of the room, surrounded by flowers. Four candles burned at the bedside. Despite his terrible suffering in his last hours, the expression upon his face was calm and serene.

Caruso's last words were said to have been spoken to his son. Monday night the singer called his son to the bedside and said to him: "My son, it is finished. I go."

The funeral services probably will be held in the Church of St. Ferdinand and prominent personages are hurrying to Rome from all parts of Europe to attend. Among the cablegrams of condolence received were messages from King George of England and President Millerand of France.

A death mask has been made and will be sent to America.

JACOBS HAS RESIGNED.

Greene Co. Assemblyman Takes Position in Federal Service.

Frank G. Jacobs of South Cairo, Republican assemblyman of Greene county, resigned Tuesday and was appointed by Cyrus Durey, who succeeded Roscoe Irwin, collector of internal revenue of the fourteenth district, as assistant division chief in the Albany office. This is the first of the important appointments Mr. Durey will make as new collector. Mr. Jacobs will have charge of the field work in twenty-two counties along the Hudson river and as far north as the Canadian border.

Still further cuts in the office force, in addition to the thirty-seven employees laid off Monday, are expected within the next week, as the result of a study of the organization Mr. Durey is making to carry out the plan for economy, outlined by President Harding. A complete list will be made known before August 15, it is expected.

Postmaster General Hays, seven of his assistants and postmasters of several of the larger cities recently witnessed in New York the inauguration of the Postmaster General's improved service. The party went down New York Bay on the President, one of the boats assigned to meet all carrying vessels at Quarantine, and watched the transferring of the mails from an incoming liner. Heretofore the mails have been held up until passengers were landed, which frequently caused a delay of twenty-four hours and at times more. The new boat service, it is said, will expedite transatlantic and coastwise mail from twenty-four to thirty-six hours. The above photo shows the President, the first U. S. mail carrier. Before Postmaster Hays is shown supervising the transferring of the mail from the Blue Hen State to the mail boat President. The sacks are dropped through a canvas chute.

fore Justice of the Peace Winfield Misner at Pine Hill, in the case of The People against Frank Seiden, charged with violation of the Mulligan-Gage law, the defendant waived examination to await the action of the grand jury. Seiden is the proprietor of the New Grand Hotel on Summit mountain near Pine Hill in the town of Shandaken, and several days ago state troopers visited the hotel armed with a search warrant and seized a quantity of liquors alleged to have too much alcoholic content, among the goods seized being nine cases of champagne made at Rheims, France, of the vintage of 1917. Du Bois Gillette represented the district attorney at the hearing and George Spengberg of Fleischmanns represented Seiden. Sheriff Koons was also present. The order to show cause why the seized champagne and other liquor should not be destroyed was set down for return before County Judge Joseph M. Fowler at the court house today.

Three Killed in Silk Mill.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paterson, N. J., Aug. 3.—Three men were killed and two others badly mangled when a whirling steel basket used in drying silk, tore loose from its fixtures at the Standard Silk Dyeing Company's plant here early today and smashed into a group of workmen. The terrific impact, due to centrifugal force which was spinning the basket at the rate of 7,000 revolutions a minute, crushed the workmen like flies, and the three who were killed were not immediately identified.

ATE RURAL SCHOOL SURVEY

U. S. U. S. Orange and Rockland Counties Meet With Committee of 21, Chamber of Commerce and Middletown, Saturday, August 13th, at 10 O'clock.

The committee of 21, known as the rural school survey committee, has been working for the past year on a concrete plan for the improvement of the rural schools. This committee of 21 is composed of representatives of all farm organizations in New York state—the Grange, the Farmers' League, Farm and Home Bureau Associations, as well as the Department of Education. The object of the committee of 21 is to work out plans for the betterment of the rural schools in New York state. The problems that will be discussed at the conference held in Middletown will be covered as fully as possible. The main difficulties in the rural school situation in general throughout New York state are a shortage of teachers in rural one-room schools, the large number of pupils with an attendance of less than six pupils, licenses for temporary teachers, the small attendance at state normal schools, lack of adequate supervision due to the widely scattered location of the schools, the physical condition of rural schools, an academic course rather than a practical course.

Less than one per cent of the pupils entering a grade course ever attend college. Under the present educational system the school curriculum is designed for the less than one per cent who do enter college with regard whatever for the vast majority who at the best do not go further than the high school. This situation is realized by the educational organizations of New York state and the committee of 21 is the result of this realization. Interests similar to the one to be held in Middletown have been held at other localities. A conference recently held in Binghamton covered the counties of Cortland, Delaware, Tioga, Seneca, Oneida, Chemung, and Yates. Representatives of farmers, school teachers, ministers, and educators met together, discussed their problems and brought many interesting deductions. The success of New York state's educational system with the rural schools is the time is ripe to plan an educational program for the farm school of New York state that will lead them to the farm rather than away from it. It is hoped that the meeting in Middletown on the 13th of August will be well attended by delegates from the subordinate counties and other farm organizations.

President in the Woods.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Lancaster, N. H., Aug. 3.—In the wooded stillness of the White Mountains, President Harding, almost completely cut off from communication with the outside world, was today seeking complete relaxation. Mount Prospect, the temporary mountain White House, is built at the top of the smaller mountain, surveying the Franconia and Presidential ranges of the White Mountains, four miles from the public thoroughfare and the same distance from a telephone.

Bank Bandit Identified.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Pittsburgh, Aug. 3.—George Burke, 26, Kansas City today was positively identified as the bandit who entered the state bank of Beaver Falls, Pa., October 25, 1918, and shot and killed Vincent Sakrada, a director and seriously wounded John L. Sakrada, the cashier.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, Aug. 3.—The stock market opened active and irregular this morning. Railroad issues were firm. Canadian Pacific advanced one point to 115 1/4. Northern Pacific rose 1/4 to 80 1/4. Great Northern rose 1 point to 77 1/4. U. S. Steel was unchanged at 76. Bethlehem Steel "B" rose 1/4 to 52 1/4. Crucible Steel rose 1/4 to 57 1/4. Baldwin Locomotive receded 1/4 to 79 1/4. Mexican Petroleum advanced 1/4 to 109 1/4. Royal Dutch rose 1/4 to 51 1/4. American Sumatra Tobacco advanced 1/4 to 49 1/4. General Asphalt rose 1/4 to 55 1/4. Allied Chemical advanced 1/4 to 37 1/4.

St. Paul preferred was also active, trading in advance at 144 1/4 and there was renewed accumulation of Rock Island which made a gain of 1/4 to 34 1/4. The steel industrials were firm. At the end of the first fifteen minutes, Mexican Petroleum still continued to advance, that stock making a gain of 1 1/4 points to 110 1/4. Some of the other oil shares made fractional gains.

Trading quieted down in the market after the first fifteen minutes and there was a reactionary tendency quickly in evidence following the advances that had been made shortly after the opening. This was attributed by some of the traders to the fixing of the renewal rate to 5 1/2 per cent, which was regarded as indicating a disposition on the part of the banks to curtail accommodations as much as possible, but interests that had been committed to the long side for some time were not disturbed by this higher renewal rate. U. S. Steel sold down from 76 1/4 to 75 1/4 and Bethlehem Steel "B" receded from 52 1/4 to 52 1/4. Railroad stocks moved in the same way. Northern Pacific selling off from 80 1/4 to 79 1/4. St. Paul preferred after selling at 44 reacted to 43 1/4. Mexican Petroleum sold down from 110 1/4 to 109 1/4. American Sugar Refining was in supply falling over two points to 67 1/4. United Drug was again in supply, yielding 2 1/2 to 5 1/2, passing the low record made about a week ago.

After a show of strength around midday the market became extremely heavy and severe declines were sustained in many issues in the afternoon trading. Railroad stocks were offered in larger blocks, Northern Pacific yielding 2 points to 78 1/4 and Great Northern sold down to 76. American Sugar was again under pressure, selling down to 65 1/4. U. S. Steel sold off from 75 1/4 to 75 and Baldwin Locomotive, after selling at 80 1/4, dropped to 79.

The market closed weak today; government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds strong.

Aged Man Kills Himself.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 3.—Ex-City Marshal David Bailey, 80 years old, committed suicide here today by shooting himself through the head. His act is attributed to poor health. Bailey was president of the Cold Spring Brewing Company.

The Best Medicine.

Two miles of oxygen three times a day. This is not only the best, but clean and pleasant to take. It suits all ages and constitutions. It is patented by Infante, scientist, sealed with the signet divine. It cures cold feet, hot hands, pale faces, feeble lungs, and bad tempers. If two or three take together it has still more striking effect. It has often been known to reconcile enemies, settle matrimonial quarrels, and bring reluctant parties to a state of double blessedness. This medicine never fails. Spurious compounds are found in large towns; but get into the country lanes, among green fields, or on the mountain top, and you have it in perfection as prepared in the great laboratory of nature.—Dr. Guy Hinsdale in Good Housekeeping.

Walnuts a Valuable Food.

Walnuts, the scientists claim, are not only a substantial article of food, but they are an excellent substitute for meat. Walnuts contain far less water than either potatoes, beefsteak, or wheat flour, while the percentage of protein and fat is far in excess. There is only just over one per cent of fat in wheat flour and 18.5 in beefsteak as compared with 64.4 per cent in walnuts. California is one of the great growing grounds for walnuts at present. The industry increasing its wealth to the extent of more than $15,000,000 a year. The California walnut industry was started by a band of British farmers some years ago, who introduced the common English walnut into that part of the world.

"According to Hoyle."

Edmund Hoyle (1672-1769) was an English writer on whist and other card games. He was the first man to systematize the laws of whist, and for a time he supported himself by teaching the game. His famous "Short Treatise on Whist" appeared in London in 1742. Rules for other games, which included the "Short Treatise," has passed into many editions. His name has become proverbial, and "Hoyle" in common speech, means a book of rules and instructions for card games, especially the famous old book edited by Hoyle himself. The common expression, "according to Hoyle," means following the rules laid down in Hoyle.

FLYING EAGLE WON BALL GAME

The Galluppers and Busters Were Tied in Ninth Frame When Roodboy's Hit Scored Winning Run—Another Tale of the Mountain League.

"Talk about the warm weather we have been having," remarked the Old Timer. "It can't compare with the warm spell we had some years back."

"That so," retorted the baseball fan "how was that?"

"Why it was so warm that those who lived near the creek could not sleep nights on account of the peculiar noises."

"What caused it?" asked the other.

"The catfish meowing because the water was so hot it made them uncomfortable," replied the Old Timer seriously. He added "but the hot weather had nothing on the feelings of the baseball fans that summer in the Mountain League when the Galluppers and the Busters were fighting it out for first place."

"They must have had some warm game," suggested the fan.

"Warm is no name for it," agreed the Old Timer. "For I remember one game in particular. The Galluppers were led by Ralph Roodboy while Twin Gormley headed the Busters and there was no love lost between the two."

"This game I was speaking of was a thriller. One of those kind you read about but seldom see. It was filled with all sorts of spectacular stunts, one-handed catches, fine fielding and pitching, and the fans were right up on edge. And to add to it all the sun was pouring hot, and it nearly caused an accident."

"How is that?" asked the fan.

"The grandstand was jammed and packed full of fans and as there was no roof over the stand the sun poured right down on them and they were perspiring so freely that before anyone realized it it had formed a pool of water and the grandstand began to float away until one of the fans threw out a rope and they anchored it to a tree."

"But to get back to the game. The Busters had finished their half of the ninth frame and the score stood 6-0, when the Galluppers came in for their half. The first two men were struck out and it looked like an extra inning game when Captain Roodboy stepped up to the plate."

"Here's your chance, Rood, win your own game," implored the fans who were rooting for the Galluppers. Roodboy only grinned and pulling his cap down over his forehead he shade his eyes more he took a firm grip of his bat and waited for the pitcher to put one over.

"The first ball was a teaser and it caught Roodboy napping and a strike was registered as he swung wildly. The second was over the heart of the plate, registering two strikes.

The Busters' pitcher grinned cheerfully and wound up in the swing he used for his favorite strike-out ball. But Roodboy was not to be caught and timing the ball to a nicety he met it with a sweet tap sending it hurtling through the air toward the center field fence.

"One glance was enough, however, to show that the center fielder, with ordinary luck, should catch it, and a groan went up from the Galluppers' bench, but as the ball slowly began to fall towards the outstretched hands of the Busters' fielder the groan changed to a cry of amazement as suddenly out of the clear sky darted a flashing form.

"It was one of the mountain eagles and evidently it thought the ball was some kind of a bird for while all on the mountain seemed the eagle gripped the baseball in its claws and disappeared in the direction of Slide Mountain while Roodboy gallanted around the bases with the winning run.

Tagging All the Bases. Barnes collapsed in the seventh and the Cards knocked the Giants for a hay mow. Washington made a clean sweep against Detroit winning the game in the eighth on Milan's triple and Rice's single. Bernie Neis's pinch single in the ninth scored Horan in with the tying and winning runs for the Dodgers at Cincinnati. The Browns won a double header from Boston by timely hitting behind their pitchers. Vangilder, Kolp and Bayne were used in the first game but Dixie Davis went the full route in the second. Rain forced all other teams to remain idle.

EVERYBODY NEEDS PLAY

Even The President, Harding Tells New Hampshire Folks.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Lancaster, N. H., Aug. 3.—Every American needs play, even the president, the chief executive of the nation told an informal gathering of the citizens of Whitefield who greeted him as he was motoring into the estate of Secretary of War Weeks which is his White Mountain play ground. The president explained that he had come to New Hampshire for the sole purpose of playing and while he said that America had many serious problems she can solve them better if a little play is mixed with much work. The president indicated, however, that he is not able to center his mind entirely on play, for he referred briefly to the forthcoming disarmament conference and said that he feels that he can almost promise that out of this conference will come a means of ending war.

DROUTH CUTS FOREIGN CROPS

Official Summary Shows Condition in Europe Rather Bad, While Southern Hemisphere Prospects Are Good.

Preliminary reports to the United States Department of Agriculture from winter-wheat growing countries whose harvests are either nearing completion or about to take place, point to deficiency in the acreage of winter wheat, as compared with the preceding season. Spring wheat, which constitutes approximately one-fourth of the world's supply has, as yet, to pass through its critical stages of development, and with a continuance of the present climatic conditions these are not very bright. Estimates of the 1921 production of wheat in Belgium are placed at 7,875,000 bushels, or 74.6 per cent of the 1920 production; in Bulgaria 48,905,000 bushels, or 123.2 per cent of last year; in Greece 13,952,000 bushels, or 114.5 per cent of last year; in Algeria 33,142,000 bushels, or 337.2 per cent of last year, and in Tunis 11,758,000 bushels, or 225 per cent of the production in 1920. Recent unofficial reports state that the coming wheat crop in Italy will approximate about 176,000,000 bushels, compared with 141,337,000 in 1920, while commercial estimates place Canada's production for the present season at approximately 300,000,000 bushels, compared with 263,189,000 bushels last year.

The principal feature of the current agricultural year in the Northern Hemisphere have been an unusually mild and dry winter, followed by a rather heavy drought which has become especially severe in Europe and India. The prolongation of this drought will probably have a serious effect on spring crops, which in some countries are already showing signs of being stunted.

On the first of this month in eastern Canada the crops were suffering greatly from prolonged drought; but conditions were reported as generally favorable over the larger part of the western provinces, especially in Saskatchewan, in spite of some rumors to the contrary.

Generally speaking, from practically the whole of Europe have come complaints of drought. In France the rainfall during the first half of the crop season was the lowest for many years, and the present month promises to establish a record for dryness. Conditions are said to be the worst in many seasons. The prolongation of the drought gives cause for keen uneasiness. Beets, spring cereals and meadows have suffered most. Autumn wheat still presents a good appearance. Winter oats will give a good yield, but the condition of spring oats and wheat leaves much to be desired.

Recent reports indicate that in the United Kingdom the drought continues to prevail with unabated severity. The deep-rooted winter wheat has stood the dry conditions remarkably well, and though the straw is short, the yield of grain promises to be satisfactory. Spring sown cereals have suffered more or less from dryness, and the yield will be somewhat below the average. On the average, both barley and oats are expected to give poor yields in all parts of the country.

In Denmark the agricultural prospects are nearly as discouraging as those of France. The harvest has commenced earlier than usual and the rye crop is almost a failure on the sandy lands. Other parts of the country are not so badly affected, but the crops generally are expected to be below the average. Similar climatic conditions are also affecting the harvest prospects of Belgium and Holland. The production of rye and barley in Belgium is estimated as follows: Rye 19,172,000 bushels, or 105.5 per cent of the 1920 production; barley 4,009,000 bushels, or 101.6 per cent of the 1920 production.

The drought has spread over a good part of Germany, but the cereal crops are too forward to suffer and the outlook, so far, is for a good harvest. However, recent cool weather has dispelled all hopes of an early harvest, and supplies of old crop grain will have to last longer than was anticipated.

According to unofficial sources the disastrous failure of the Russian crops is now generally known. The famine area embraces the whole Volga region, the Kuban district, the rich province of Ekaterinodar, and six central provinces. The yield of crops will only be a third of the amount expected.

In Roumania crop prospects are generally well maintained except in the droughty districts, although later reports state that in consequence of further rains the outlook of spring cereals in these districts is becoming favorable.

In Hungary crop prospects are considered satisfactory and an increased production is expected. In Austria the harvest is progressing everywhere, but on account of the drought the weather is not all that could be desired.

In Jugoslavia the crop prospects are not as satisfactory owing to adverse weather conditions. Heavy rains and hailstorms have been experienced and these have beaten down the cereals in the Bosnia and Timok districts. Owing to the drought and the adverse weather mentioned above the wheat crop will be poor, but the corn crop is expected to be a little more promising.

In Italy reasonable weather conditions are prevailing. So far, crop reports are generally favorable. Spring crops, such as corn, haricot beans, hemp, etc., are ripening in satisfactory condition.

From Spain reports indicate satisfactory conditions with the prospects of a larger wheat crop than last year.

From India disquieting reports of the failure of the monsoon have come to hand and moisture is generally urgently needed. Grave anxiety prevails as to the weakness of the monsoon in Western India and fears are expressed of famine in many parts of the dependency.

In North Africa harvesting is practically finished and the yields appear, on the whole, to be somewhat better than last year. From Egypt recent reports indicate favorable climatic conditions. The area sown to cotton for 1921 is estimated at 1,335,000 acres. This is considerably less than in 1920, when the area was approximately 1,397,000 acres, and less than the average of the previous 10 normal years, which was 1,732,000 acres. The planting of the 1921 crop was, however, restricted by law, and a proper comparison is with 1915 and 1918, when a similar limitation was enforced, and the areas were 1,231,000 and 1,266,000 respectively.

In the southern hemisphere in both Argentina and Australia, weather conditions have been reported favorable, and hopes, based on the present appearance of the fields, are for good yields from the coming harvest.

Robinson Walter Examination.
Tuesday at Albany when arraigned for a hearing, Emory P. Robinson, shell shocked war veteran, and William Gage, a negro accused of stealing a touring car owned by George T. Stearns in Albany, Friday, July 23, waived examination for the grand jury on a charge of grand larceny. The men were arrested on North Front Street this city, Friday evening by Officer James Martin who suspected that they had stolen the touring car by which they stood. They were locked up and investigation proved the officer was correct and the Albany police were notified and the two thieves taken back to Albany. Robinson had been in the state hospital at Poughkeepsie for nine months and had made his escape on Tuesday of last week. After being admitted to bail in New York, Albany, he was returned to the state hospital at Poughkeepsie. Gage was committed to jail.

ANNALS OF THE WORLD.
The world has grown better since the discovery of the egg and the growth of civilization has kept pace with the growth of the conquering hand—two circumstances which may be regarded as coincidences. But from the facts of the case it may be surmised by concluding that a still greater coincidence of least can be found in the fact of a more civilized world. Why should not the facts be correlated when the egg contains the vital principle of growth of the body and also a substance that nourishes the body—an article of food that is responsible for both body growth and mental cultivation? Why should we not get more eggs and look for a higher civilization?—James Dryden.

TWELFTH WARD WANTS JENKINS

Democrats Met Monday Evening in That Ward And Voted To Recommend Former County Judge For Mayor—Martin For Alderman And George Barger for Supervisor.

Former County Judge James Jenkins is the choice of the Democrats of the Twelfth ward for the Democratic nomination of mayor this fall, and at a meeting of the Democrats of that ward Monday evening they voted unanimously to recommend his name for that office at the meeting to be held at the city hall this evening.

Alderman William B. Martin will again be the Democratic nominee for the office of alderman of that ward, and a committee was appointed to wait on George Barger and urge him to accept the nomination of supervisor in that ward.

In the Eighth ward the Democrats will recommend, Hugh McTague for supervisor and Alderman Peter A. Kullmann to succeed himself as alderman.

The city committee of the Democrats met tonight at the city hall at 8 o'clock to arrange a ticket for the fall election, and it is expected that a complete ticket, with the probable exception of mayor will be named.

City Judge Harry E. Schirick will again be the Democratic candidate for city judge as he has refused to consider the nomination for mayor.

DANCE TEACHERS PLAN REFORMS

Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Aug. 3.—It's not what you do with your feet that matters, said Grand-Daddy Lewis Kretlow today.

It's what you don't do with them when the rest of you is going places. Grand-Daddy Lewis knows.

He is the patriarch of American dancing teachers, here in convention convened to devise some new steps and reduce the rough stuff in modern dancing to 1/2 of 1 percent.

Some two hundred odd dancing teachers from all parts of the United States have charged down upon New York for their annual gathering, shouting "reform!"

Or at least enough reform so that any young man who wants to keep abreast of the times and his best girl must get out and get himself some dancing lessons.

They're going to take away the tiddle.

The catch as catch can can-can is to be officially counted out.

All those vulgar, easy dances that any one with two legs, or maybe a stout crutch, could do at sight, are to be banned and tabooed the coming winter.

There has been a slump in the dancing teaching business, many delegates admitted today. The dances were getting so simple that people were drawn right up out of their seats by the wall of the saxophone and before they knew it were out in the middle of the floor, toddling away without having taken any lessons at all.

Moreover, "standardization," that key-word of the dancing teaching industry, were tossed to the four notes of the piccolo by the simplicity of the recent innovations. Everyone's tiddle was his own, and it was just as good as anyone's else.

So we are to have some new, more stately dances for the coming season. Just what they are to be will be determined before the end of the week.

Miss Nancy Morford, who is here from East St. Louis, suggest that a "Morford Valtz" may be among the latest crazes.

Lewis Kretlow, who brought his venerable white beard and agile underpinnings to his fortieth "or maybe fiftieth" annual convention, has seen dances come and go since his was the height of improper jazz. Lewis is a lot more tolerant of popular dances than many of the other teachers.

"If we could just get 'em to move their feet once in a while it wouldn't be so bad," Lewis allowed.

Prohibition, he said, has hurt dancing, but helped to reduce the proportion of impropriety. Before, in the good old days, he said, old folks as well as young used to hear the strains of jazz music through a haze of alcohol, get up, give a whoop, grab their girls and dance—any old way at all. Now that's over and middle-aged folks are holding down the chairs around the wall.

And dances get more proper every day.

Fighting Hog Cholera.

When hog cholera sweeps through a neighborhood, causing the death of hundreds of animals, a simple precaution, as the proper location of the lot, may be the means of preventing infection. Where not to have the lot is pointed out and other suggestions on the control and eradication of this disease are given in a booklet published by the United States Department of Agriculture. Hog lots should be located away from streams and highways. Free range, streams, irrigation canals, etc., help in the spread of cholera outbreaks. Don't visit neighbors' hog lots or allow neighbors to visit yours if they have sick hogs. Infection may be carried by teams and wagons from highways; don't drive into hog lots. Isolate for at least two weeks all new stock hogs and those just returned from exhibitions and sales. Don't borrow or lend hogs for breeding purposes if cholera is in the community.

Burn to ashes or bury 4 feet deep all animals that die on the farm and the unused internal organs of slaughtered animals, since they attract dogs, which may carry infection. If cholera appears in the neighborhood, confine your dog and encourage others to do likewise. Immunize herds located dangerously near infected centers. Careful attention to the feeding and handling of the herd after immunization is an important matter. Mange, lice, and worms lower the vitality of hogs and render them more susceptible to disease.

If cholera appears in the herd, post warning notices so your neighbors will know about it, suggests the department. Have all susceptible hogs immunized at once by some one with special training and experience, preferably a competent veterinarian. Insist that the temperature of all hogs be taken at time of treatment and an increased dose of serum given to those showing a temperature of 104° F. or over. Confine all treated hogs to limited, clean quarters; keep on light, restricted diet for at least two weeks, and give plenty of pure drinking water. Antihog-cholera serum is not a cure, but when used as soon as cholera appears in a herd it seems to have a favorable effect on some animals in the very early stage of the disease. Don't rely on serum to cure sick hogs—it is primarily a preventive.

If the disease comes to your farm and runs its course, disinfect thoroughly afterwards all places where sick hogs have been. First, remove all infected manure and spread on fields inaccessible to hogs. Burn all litter, rubbish, and old troughs from infected pens and lots. Turn over portable hog houses, exposing the interior to sunlight. Thoroughly clean pens and buildings in which sick hogs have been kept, and disinfect by spraying with compound cresol solution, 1 part to 30 parts of soft water. In summer, pastures and lots are usually made safe within three weeks by the action of sunlight. Fill, drain, or fence off mud wallows. Disinfect and board up all runs underneath buildings. Destroy hogs that don't fully recover; they may carry cholera infection.

"Favorite of 15 Cars"

"Have driven 9,000 miles to date and instead of depreciating in efficiency my Essex has increased daily."

It is the greatest of 15 makes I have driven.
BRUCE CHISHOLM
City and Suburban Realty Co.
Cleveland, Ohio

"Snug As New After 32,500 Miles"

"In 17 months have driven my Essex 32,500 miles. Bearings are still as snug as when I received the car. It has all the power and speed of a new car. 20,000 on a set of fabric tires still good for 3000 miles."

WM. J. LYNCH
Ft. Bliss Auto Stand
El Paso, Texas

"Best of 31 Cars"

"During the past ten years I have owned 31 automobiles ranging in cost from $1,500 to $10,000, but my Essex Sedan does everything and more than any of them did."

The Writer's Name and Address
Will Be Furnished on Request

"Over 20,000 Miles on Tires"

"Have driven my Essex Sedan over 20,000 miles on the original tires. Has given excellent satisfaction—upkeep has been very slight. Am also driving an Essex touring which has covered 14,000 miles, and my experience with this has been equal to that with the Sedan."

J. M. BROS. Secretary
Wm. Bros. Boiler & Manufacturing Co.
Minneapolis, Minn.

"Too Good to Trade"

"We will not trade in any of our Essex cars, but will use them another season. They were used continually since the Spring of 1920, and the men who drive them requested me not to trade them in this year, as each is convinced he has the very best car on the road, and the best motor he ever rode behind."

"As rapidly as our F—s are retired, we will take on the Essex. They are just as light on tires, use less gas than the F— cover mileage faster, are easier on the men. Practically no time out for repairs."

WALRATH & SHERWOOD
LUMBER CO.
Omaha, Nebraska

"Just Try It After 22,000 Miles"

"One ride in my Essex as it stands, after 22,000 miles, will convince anybody that it has as much power, speed, reliability and freedom from noise as when new."

"Its transcontinental record is not merely a record—it's a miracle"—From "The Car," London, Eng.

In 4 trips across America Essex 4 times breaks the transcontinental record

First Essex

San Francisco to New York

Lowest Record 12 hrs., 48 min.

Second Essex

New York to San Francisco

Lowest Record 22 hrs., 13 min.

Third Essex

San Francisco to New York
—4 days, 21 hrs., 56 min.
Lowest Record by 5 hrs., 38 min.

Fourth Essex

New York to San Francisco
—5 days, 6 hrs., 13 min.
Lowest Record by 11 hrs., 19 min.

The average time for each of the four Essex cars over 3347 miles Ocean to Ocean route was 4 days, 21 hours, 32 minutes.

Essex set the official 50-hour record, traveling 3037 miles at better than a mile a minute. For cars of its motor size it holds all official stock records for speed and endurance from 1 to 50 hours.

It set the world's 24-hour road mark of 1061 miles, and the official 24-hour dirt track record of 1261 miles.

Essex also set the New York-Chicago record—24 hrs., 43 min., and the San Bernardino hill climb record.

—because it is built this way

Essex did not bring costly car performance and reliability to the light, moderate-priced field without duplicating or excelling the design and workmanship of the finest, high-priced cars.

For instance S. F. Edge, England's most noted automobile authority says: "This motor might have had a Coatelen* or a Pomeroy* as its sponsor (* Respectively designers of two English cars of higher-price than any American car.)"

And so throughout, Essex gets its long endurance, and continued smoothness and quietness of operation, from the way it is built. It has eliminated squeaking bodies with a frame so designed that it does not weave. This frame, with one exception is sturdier for the duty it is to perform than any other car.

Devices which provide for longer wear, or for taking up wear at no expense, are Essex features that only a few of the highest priced cars duplicate. This is the reason that Essex cars that have seen 2 years service and upwards of 20,000 miles are running as well and as quietly and economically now as when new. Bearings are snug. Joints are tight and free from squeaks. Doors are solid and flush-fitting, without rattles. You never have seen an Essex with weaving wheels, and bar accident sufficient to smash a car, you never will.

These are not spectacular advantages. You may not notice them in comparing Essex to another new car. But you will know what they mean if you compare an old Essex to another old car.

Time serves to show the real difference between the way cars are built. That is why Essex owners who have had their cars through long, hard service, speak with such conviction of its goodness.

It is easy for you to find and examine the real proofs regarding any car you may think of buying:

What have cars of the same make shown over a period of several years?

What is the future expectancy of good service from such cars after twenty or thirty thousand miles.

You have the all important advantage of being able to ask owners. Make use of it. It is an inexpensive insurance against the risk of making a selection you may regret.

We will be glad of an early opportunity to explain the many points of advantage that only costly cars share with Essex.

ALL ITALY MOURNS CARUSO

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Naples, Aug. 3.—All Italy today mourned for Enrico Caruso. Arrangements are being made for a funeral of international proportions. All the stores in Naples are closed. Crowds, bareheaded and reverent passed before the Vesuvius Hotel where the great singer died yesterday morning.

The body will lie in state on the stage of the San Carlos Theater before interment.

The death room in the Vesuvius Hotel was filled with floral tributes. Orders for flowers came from all parts of the world.

Caruso's will is said to dispose of 50,000,000 lire.

It is learned that Caruso went upon a pilgrimage to the shrine of Madonna at Pompeii where he donated 2,000 lire as a thanksgiving offering for his recovery from illness. About the same time King Victor Emmanuel sent an aide de camp to Caruso's villa to express his best wishes over the apparent recovery from illness.

It was not until after Caruso's death that the specialists who had been attending him announced that kidney disease was really the cause of death. The singer was in great pain during his last hours of life, but bore himself stoically. His sufferings were so intense that his wife and brother could not bear to remain in the sick chamber and left it at frequent intervals to compose themselves.

Signor de Luca, a close friend of Caruso, who had spent nearly the whole of Monday night at the bedside, said he had never seen such mortal agony as the singer endured.

Intimates of Caruso said that up to a week before his death the tenor was most optimistic over his recovery although at times he seemed to brood and it is now believed that he felt a presentiment of serious illness which he did not reveal even to members of his family.

Caruso was not a perfect medical patient. His doctor had put him upon a diet, but the singer continually disregarded it and ate heavy dishes that were forbidden. Caruso was always a hearty eater and chafed under the restraint which the physicians had imposed upon him.

Caruso was fond of company and liked to give parties. At one party given to a number of his friends at Capri, he made a speech in which he said that he was sure he would get well, and that he hoped to sing again next winter in his old time form.

When Caruso came to Naples, he was suffering great pain, but he bore it stoically, hoping that it would disappear after a short course of treatment by specialists. He confided to his friend Archibison that he was feeling bad but hoped it was nothing serious.

Admirers of the singer recalled an incident today which has taken on significance since his death. On a recent church feast day Caruso volunteered to sing for his friends at his Sorrento villa. The last song he selected was called "The Swan Song." Caruso did not complain, but it is believed that he overtaxed his strength on this occasion. This was the only time that he had sung since his return from the United States in the spring.

About ten days ago Caruso's close friend Archibison advised him to go to bed for a rest, saying he was not looking well. Caruso laughed and refused. Afterwards, however, he consented to the calling of Dr. Bastiaelli, the famous Italian specialist from Rome. At that time Caruso was at Sorrento. After making a careful examination the specialist advised Caruso to go to Rome for an operation. The operation was to have taken place yesterday. The trip to Rome was started, but on the way Caruso became so bad that it was decided to stop off at Naples. Dr. Bastiaelli took his patient to the Vesuvius Hotel and other specialists were called in.

After death the body was embalmed and confined to the hotel room where death had occurred. The apartment had been converted into a mortuary chapel. The body rested in the bed in the middle of the room, surrounded by flowers. Four candles burned at the bedside. Despite his terrific suffering in his last hours, the expression upon his face was calm and serene.

Caruso's last words were said to have been spoken to his son. Monday night the singer called his son to the bedside and said to him: "My son, it is finished. I go."

The funeral services probably will be held in the Church of St. Ferdinand and prominent personages are hurrying to Rome from all parts of Europe to attend. Among the cabarets of condolence received were messages from King George of England and President Milerand of France.

A death mask has been made and will be sent to America.

JACOBS HAS RESIGNED.

Greene Co. Assemblyman Takes Position in Federal Service.

Frank G. Jacobs of South Cairo, Republican assemblyman of Greene county, resigned Tuesday and was appointed by Cyrus Durrey, who succeeded Greene as collector of internal revenue of the Southern district, as assistant district clerk in the Albany office. This is the first of the important appointments Mr. Durrey will make as new collector. Jacobs will have charge of the grand jury. Jacobs is the proprietor of the New Grand Hotel on Seneca street in Albany. He is a native of South Cairo and has been in the town of Seneca for many years.

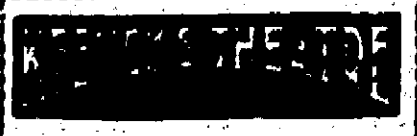

South Cairo, N. Y., Aug. 3.—Three men were killed and two others badly injured when a whiskey still exploded in a distillery here today. The explosion occurred in the distillery of the New Grand Hotel on Seneca street, which is owned by Frank G. Jacobs. The explosion occurred at about 10 o'clock and was heard for miles around. The cause of the explosion is not yet known.

FLYING EAGLE WON BALL GAME

The Galluppers and Busters Were Tied in Ninth Frame When Roodboy's Hit Scored Winning Run—Another Tale of the Mountain League.

"Talk about the warm weather we have been having," remarked the Old Timer, "it can't compare with the warm spell we had some years back."

"That so," retorted the baseball fan "how was that?"

"Why it was so warm that those who lived near the creek could not sleep nights on account of the peculiar noises."

"What caused it?" asked the other.

"The catfish meowing because the water was so hot it made them uncomfortable," replied the Old Timer seriously. He added "but the hot weather had nothing on the feelings of the baseball fans that summer in the Mountain League when the Galluppers and the Busters were fighting it out for first place."

"They must have had some warm game," suggested the fan.

"Warm is no name for it," agreed the Old Timer, "for I remember one game in particular. The Galluppers were led by Ralph Roodboy while Twin Gormley headed the Busters and there was no love lost between the two."

"This game I was speaking of was a thriller. One of those kind you read about but seldom see. It was filled with all sorts of spectacular stunts, one-handed catches, fine fielding and pitching, and the fans were right up on edge. And to add to it all the sun was pouring hot, and it nearly caused an accident."

"How is that?" asked the fan.

"The grandstand was jammed and packed full of fans and as there was no room over the stand the sun poured right down on them and they were perspiring so freely that before anyone realized it it had formed a pool of water and the grandstand began to float away until one of the fans threw out a rope and they anchored it to a tree."

"But I get back to the game. The Busters had finished their half of the ninth frame and the score stood 0-0, when the Galluppers came in for their half. The first two men were struck out and it looked like an extra inning game when Captain Roodboy stepped up to the plate."

"Here's your chance, Rood, win your own game," implored the fans who were rooting for the Galluppers.

Roodboy only grinned and pulling his cap down over his forehead to shade his eyes more he took a firm grip of his bat and waited for the pitcher to put one over.

"The first ball was a teaser and it caught Roodboy napping and a strike was registered as he swung wildly. The second was over the heart of the plate, registering two strikes."

The Busters' pitcher grinned cheerfully and wound up in the swing he used for his favorite strike-out ball. But Roodboy was not to be caught and timing the ball to a nicety he met it with a sweet tap sending it hurtling through the air toward the center field fence.

"One glance was enough, however, to show that the center fielder, with ordinary luck, should catch it, and a groan went up from the Galluppers' bench, but as the ball slowly began to fall towards the outstretched hands of the Busters' fielder the groan changed to a cry of amazement as suddenly out of the clear sky darted a flashing form.

"It was one of the mountain eagles and evidently it thought the ball was some kind of a bird for while all on a sudden it swooped down and snatched the baseball in its claws and disappeared in the direction of Slide Mountain while Roodboy, galled around the bases with the winning run.

Tearing All the Bases. Barnes collapsed in the seventh and the Cards knocked the Giants for a hay mow.

Washington made a clean sweep against Detroit winning the game in the eighth on Milan's triple and Rice's single.

Borneo Nels' pinch single in the ninth scored Hood and Jannvin with the tying and winning runs for the Dodgers at Cincinnati.

The Browns won a double header from Boston by timely hitting behind their pitchers. Vanzilder, Kolp and Byrne were used in the first game but Dixie Davis went the full route in the second.

Ran forced all other teams to remain idle.

AT THE THEATRES.

Comedy at Keeney's—"Hearts Are Trumps" at Auditorium.

In trying to save his younger brother from the clutches of a vampire, Adrian Matland, a wealthy yacht owner, descended upon little Dupont island and kidnapped the fair-haired Christina, whom he found there. It was not until they were far out at sea that he discovered that the woman he had captured was not the notorious vampire whom he expected, but the girl he had loved.

How he got out of this complicated and compromising situation is told and commensurate laughter is evoked by the burlesque of "The First Elongation," a jocular comedy at Keeney's tonight, in which Wanda Huxley plays the part of the witch named "A Sunshiny comedy."

The Sims "Man and Jack" Pathé Review and Literary Digest are added attractions. Thursday, Ethel Clayton in "The Prince of Possession."

Love and hate, truth and falsehood, enmity and concord in stirring for mastery with the weight of a globe, like change tiding the scales of destiny now this way and now that, is the magic melodrama of "Hearts Are Trumps" at the Auditorium tonight. Ethel Clayton in "The Prince of Possession."

EVERYBODY NEEDS PLAY

Given The President, Harding, Tele New Hampshire Path.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Lancaster, N. H., Aug. 3.—Every American needs play, even the president, the chief executive of the nation sold an informal gathering of the citizens of Whitefield who greeted him as he was motoring into the estate of Secretary of War Weeks which is his White Mountain playground.

The president explained that he had come to New Hampshire for the sole purpose of playing and while he said that America had many serious problems she can solve them better if a little play is mixed with much work. The president indicated, however, that he is not able to enter his mind entirely on play, for he referred briefly to the forthcoming disarmament conference and said that he feels that he can almost promise that out of this conference will come a means of ending war.

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, Aug. 3.—The White House today received word from the White House that the president will be in New Hampshire for the week of the 10th to the 15th of this month.

SENSATIONAL SUIT MAY BE REVIVED

Much interest has been aroused in Saugerties and its vicinity by the current report that the action brought by Mrs. Marie Dudley against Mrs. Elizabeth Batelle Vanderpool for the alleged seduction of her husband, is to be brought to trial at the coming term of the supreme court to be held at the court house in this city in October. This action, which attracted the attention of the New York and Washington newspapers, was thought to have been abandoned, but it seems that the recent death of Mr. Dudley, and the publication of comments in his will, have resurrected it. Mr. Dudley was a wealthy lawyer of Washington; his wife inherited a large independent fortune. Mrs. Vanderpool who owned an elegant residence on the banks of the Hudson near Saugerties, was the talented and beautiful daughter of Cornelius Batelle, a member of the great firm of Batelle and Renwick, who founded the Ulster white lead works at Glenrie, out of which they made an immense fortune during the civil war. She married a nephew of the Hon. Aaron J. Vanderpool one of the most eminent lawyers of his day. Precisely upon what the action is predicated never has been disclosed, but merely hinted at. Carroll Whitaker of Saugerties was at one time Mrs. Dudley's attorney. It is not known who succeeded him when he died. It is reported that eminent New York counsel have done so. Mrs. Vanderpool's counsel are House, Grossman and Vorhaus, prominent New York lawyers, and Judge Clearwater.

DANCE TEACHERS PLAN REFORMS

Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Aug. 3.—It's not what you do with your feet that matters, said Grand-Daddy Lewis Kretlow today.

It's what you can't do with them when the rest of you is going places.
Grand-Daddy Lewis knows.

He is the patriarch of American dancing teachers, here in convention convened to devise some new steps and reduce the rough stuff in modern dancing to 1/2 of 1 percent.

Some two hundred odd dancing teachers from all parts of the United States have charged down upon New York for their annual gathering, shouting "reform!"

Or at least enough reform so that any young man who wants to keep abreast of the times and his best girl must get out and get himself some dancing lessons.

They're going to take away the toddle.

The catch as catch can can-can is to be officially counted out.

All those vulgar, easy dances that any one with two legs, or maybe a stout crutch, could do at sight, are to be banned and tabooed the coming winter.

There has been a slump in the dancing teaching business, many delegates admitted today. The dances were getting so simple that people were drawn right up out of their seats by the wail of the saxophone and before they knew it were out in the middle of the floor, toddling away without having taken any lessons at all.

Moreover, "standardization," that key-word of the dancing teaching industry, were tossed to the four notes of the piccolo by the simplicity of the recent innovations. Everyone's tod-dle was his own, and it was just as good as anyone's else.

So we are to have some new, more stately dances for the coming season.

Just what they are to be will be determined before the end of the week.

Miss Nancy Morford, who is here from East St. Louis, suggest that a "Morford Waltz" may be among the latest crazes.

Lewis Kretlow, who brought his venerable white beard and agile underpinnings to his fortieth "or maybe fiftieth" annual convention, has seen dances come and go since he was the height of improper jazz. Lewis is a lot more tolerant of popular dances than many of the other teachers.

"If we could just get 'em to move their feet once in a while it wouldn't be so bad," Lewis allowed.

Prohibition, he said, has hurt dancing, but helped to reduce the proportion of impropriety. Before, in the good old days, he said, old folks as well as young used to hear the strains of jazz music through a haze of alcohol, get up, give a whoop, grab their girls and dance—any old way at all. Now that's over and middle-aged folks are holding down the chairs around the wall.

And dances get more proper every day.

Fighting Hog Cholera.

When hog cholera sweeps through a neighborhood, causing the death of hundreds of animals, a simple prevention, as the proper location of the lot, may be the means of preventing infection. Where not to have the lot is pointed out and other suggestions on the control and eradication of this disease are given in a bulletin published by the United States Department of Agriculture. Hog lots should be located away from streams and highways. Free range, streams, irrigation canals, etc., help in the spread of cholera outbreaks. Don't visit neighbors' hog lots or allow neighbors to visit yours if they have sick hogs. Infection may be carried by teams and wagons from highways; don't drive into hog lots. Isolate for at least two weeks all new stock hogs and those just returned from exhibitions and sales. Don't borrow or lend hogs for breeding purposes if cholera is in the community.

Burn to ashes or bury 4 feet deep all animals that die on the farm and the unused internal organs of slaughtered animals, since they attract dogs, which may carry infection. If cholera appears in the neighborhood, confine your dog and encourage others to do likewise. Immune herds located dangerously near infected centers. Careful attention to the feeding and handling of the herd after immunization is an important matter. Mange, lice, and worms lower the vitality of hogs and render them more susceptible to disease.

If cholera appears in the herd, post warning notices so your neighbors will know about it, suggests the department. Have all susceptible hogs immunized at once by some one with special training and experience, preferably a competent veterinarian.
Insist that the temperature of all hogs be taken at time of treatment and an increased dose of serum given to those showing a temperature of 104° F. or over. Confine all treated hogs to limited, clean quarters; keep on light, restricted diet for at least two weeks, and give plenty of pure drinking water. Antibog-cholera serum is not a cure, but when used as soon as cholera appears in a herd it seems to have a favorable effect on some animals in the very early stages of the disease. Don't rely on serum to cure sick hogs—it is primarily a preventive.

If the disease comes to your farm and runs its course, disinfect thoroughly afterwards all places where sick hogs have been. First, remove all infected manure and spread on fields inaccessible to hogs.
Burn all litter, rubbish, and old things from infected pens and lots.
Turn over portable box houses, exposing the interior to sunlight.
Thoroughly clean pens and buildings in which sick hogs have been kept, and disinfect by spraying with compound cresol solution. I part in 20 parts of soft water. In summer quarters and lots are usually made safe within three weeks by the action of sunlight. Fill drains or fence off used wallows. Disinfect and board up all open underground buildings.
Destroy hogs that don't fully recover;
they may carry cholera infection.

ESSEX

Men say these things about it—

"Like New After Two Years"

"Purchased my Essex in the Spring of 1919 and after covering over 18,000 miles my motor is running better than ever. Battery has been out of my car only once. No mechanical expense has been incurred."

HENRY R. GAMMETT
The Dunning & Gammett Co.
Minneapolis, Minn.

"Favorite of 15 Cars"

"Have driven 9,000 miles to date and instead of depreciating in efficiency, my Essex has increased daily."

"It is the greatest of 15 makes I have driven."

BRUCE CHISHOLM
City and Suburban Realty Co.
Cleveland, Ohio

"Snug As New After 32,500 Miles"

"In 17 months have driven my Essex 32,500 miles. Bearings are still as snug as when I received the car. It has all the power and speed of a new car. 30,000 on a set of Fabric tires still good for 3000 miles."

WM. J. LYNCH
Ft. Bliss Auto Stand
El Paso, Texas

"Best of 31 Cars"

"During the past ten years I have owned 31 automobiles ranging in cost from $1,500 to $10,000, but my Essex Sedan does everything and more than any of them did."

The Writer's Name and Address
Will Be Furnished on Request

"Over 20,000 Miles on Tires"

"Have driven my Essex Sedan over 20,000 miles on the original tires. Has given excellent satisfaction—upkeep has been very slight.
Am also driving an Essex touring which has covered 14,000 miles, and my experience with this has been equal to that with the Sedan."

J. M. BROS. Secretary
Wm. Bros. Boiler & Manufacturing Co.
Minneapolis, Minn.

"Too Good to Trade"

"We will not trade in any of our Essex cars, but will use them another season. They were used continually since the Spring of 1920, and the men who drive them requested not to trade them in this year, as each is convinced he has the very best car on the road, and the best motor he ever rode behind."

"As rapidly as our F-1's are retired, we will take on the Essex. They are just as light on their feet, use less gas than the F-1's, cover mileage faster, are easier on the men.
Practically no time-out for repairs."

WALRATH & SHERWOOD
LUMBER CO.
Omaha, Nebraska

"Just Try It After 22,000 Miles"

"One ride in my Essex as it stands after 22,000 miles, will convince anybody that it has as much power, speed, reliability and freedom from noise as when new."

E. L. MORRILL
Merrick Medicine Co., Inc.
Waco, Texas

"Absolutely the brightest, liveliest, little engine I ever found in an American Car"—S. F. Edge in "The Autocar," London, Eng.
"A colossal revelation of the value Americans can offer at its price"—E. N. D. in "The Auto," of London, Eng.
"Its transcontinental record is not merely a record—it's a miracle"—From "The Car," London, Eng.

—and it set all these famous records—

In 4 trips across America Essex 4 times breaks the transcontinental record

First Essex

San Francisco to New York
—4 days, 14 hrs., 43 min.
Lowest Record 12 hrs., 40 min.

Second Essex

New York to San Francisco
—4 days, 19 hrs., 17 min.
Lowest Record 22 hrs., 13 min.

Third Essex

San Francisco to New York
—4 days, 21 hrs., 54 min.
Lowest Record by 5 hrs., 36 min.

Fourth Essex

New York to San Francisco
—5 days, 6 hrs., 13 min.
Lowest Record by 11 hrs., 19 min.

The average time for each of the four Essex trips over 3347 miles Ocean to Ocean route was 4 days, 21 hours, 32 minutes.

Essex set the official 50-hour record, traveling 3037 miles at better than a mile a minute. For cars of its motor size it holds all official stock records for speed and endurance from 1 to 50 hours.

It set the world's 24-hour road mark of 1061 miles, and the official 24-hour dirt track record of 1261 miles.

Essex also set the New York-Chicago record—24 hrs., 43 min., and the San Bernardino hill climb record.

—because it is built this way

Essex did not bring costly car performance and reliability to the light, moderate-priced field without duplicating or excelling the design and workmanship of the finest, high-priced cars.

For instance S. F. Edge, England's most noted automobile authority says: "This motor might have had a Castrol or a Pomeroy" as its sponsor (* Respectively designers of two English cars of higher-price than any American car.)

And so throughout, Essex gets its long endurance, and continued smoothness and quietness of operation, from the way it is built. It has eliminated squeaking bodies with a frame so designed that it does not weave. This frame, with one exception is sturdier for the duty it is to perform than any other car.

Devices which provide for longer wear, or for taking up wear at no expense, are Essex features that only a few of the highest priced cars duplicate. This is the reason that Essex cars that have seen 2 years service and upwards of 20,000 miles are running as well and as quietly and economically now as when new. Bearings are snug. Joints are tight and free from squeaks. Doors are solid and flush-fitting, without rattles. You never have seen an Essex with weaving wheels, and bar accident sufficient to smash a car, you never will.

These are not spectacular advantages. You may not notice them in comparing Essex to another new car. But you will know what they mean if you compare an old Essex to another old car.

Time serves to show the real difference between the way cars are built. That is why Essex owners who have had their cars through long, hard service, speak with such conviction of its goodness.

It is easy for you to find and examine the real proofs regarding any car you may think of buying:

What have cars of the same make shown over a period of several years?

What is the future expectancy of good service from such cars after twenty or thirty thousand miles.

You have the all important advantage of being able to ask owners.
Make use of it. It is an inexpensive insurance against the risk of making a selection you may regret.

We will be glad of an early opportunity to explain the many points of advantage that only costly cars share with Essex.

JAMESON SAFE AT THEO.

This thrilling action picture shows Jameson, Cleveland outdoors safe at third base on a historic occasion. Baker, York third baseman, is shown making a valiant attempt to beat Jameson to the base. The picture was made at the Polo Grounds during the first game of the all-important series with the Cleveland champions, the outcome of which will probably decide which team will win the pennant.

Olga Neherovitch, whose daring roles on the stage are well remembered, particularly her part as Saphira, now is gallantly assisting, according to dispatches from London.
Miss Neherovitch has announced her intention to be a candidate for a seat in the House of Commons and emulate Lady Amber. Miss Neherovitch has been very active in London for a number of years in public health organizations. She has not announced with what party she will affiliate. A brilliant platform, her friends say, will be part of her political campaign.

Wounded police attempting to maintain order in front of the Boston Fire Cost Savings Bank during the monstrous run on the institution. Thousands of panic-stricken depositors caused a riot, and the police were much difficulty maintaining the situation. The run on the bank was said to have been caused by rumors, which have circulated these reports of the bank's financial state.
